By IAN STREET

A Greater Victoria secondary school principal last night charged a department of education order is "stifling" informed debate on the Chant report on education.

B. C. Gillie, principal of S. J. Willis Junior High School, told the Provincial Council of Women: "I have no hesitation in saying that even if I agreed with everything in the Chant report, which I don't, I would oppose it right down the line as it is being handled now."

SHARED PLATFORM

He shared the speaker's platform with Dean Neville Scarfe of the UBC college of education, who charged that "the whole system of education in B.C. is directed from above, not animated from below, in the classroom where it's happening."

In a scathing attack on the royal commission, Dean Scarfe said his voluminous report, "translated into harsh terms, simply means let us keep our horses and buggy, cars go too fast."

DIDN'T AGREE

Mr. Gillie said while he didn't agree with all the views expressed, Dean Scarfe was "about the only voice in education in this province who has so far spoken out and endeavored to interpret the Chant report, whether for better or worse."

The school principal added: "We have heard nothing from the district superintendents or from the department of education, or from our universities, in general. They have been told—at least in the case of the department of education, which employs district superintendents — not to speak out."

PLAY POLITICS

Mr. Gillie said he was aware that he was inviting criticism from some quarters for "playing politics" while a teacher. He added: "It politics is the reason these officials were told not to speak, thus effectively stifling the most informed source of public information on the subject of education, then I believe something must be radically wrong with our political institutions."

DOING NO GOOD

Meanwhile, Mr. Gillie added, the resulting lack of public information is "doing no good to the Chant report and is doing a great disservice to the cause of education."

Mr. Gillie described the report as "essentially a document that looks back, placing the greatest emphasis on procedures which in the opinion of the commissioners have been tried and tested and judged successful, but under conditions that no longer exist."

GLOUSED OVER

He cited the way the report "gloosed over" use of television as a teaching medium. Dean Scarfe told the audience in the Empress Hotel "all of us are in favor of some things in the Chant report."

He added: "I would like to see excellence in all things, not just the Three R's at all levels in our schools. But I don't see it, and I don't see what the commissioners want by."

The president told a news conference that only the presence of the United Nations in the Congo could keep peace in Africa.

He said the United States had supported and will continue to support the United Nations presence in the country, then noted Russian pledges to aid leftist leader Antoine Gizenga, the Communist's choice as the successor to Patrice Lumumba.

PARALYSIS SOVIET GOAL I WON'T QUIT, SAYS DAG

Melee

At UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Dag Hammarskjöld charged late Wednesday that the Soviet Union is trying to paralyze the United Nations by attack on him.

The UN secretary general struck back at Russia at a hectic meeting of the UN Security Council which earlier saw the wildest melee in UN history when a group of Negroes roared into the council chamber protesting the slaying of Patrice Lumumba in the Congo.

REVOLTING CRIME

Hammarskjöld, in his hard-hitting 4,400-word speech, began by describing the slaying of Lumumba, deposed Congolese premier, as a "revolting crime."

Rejecting Soviet demands that he resign or be dismissed, Hammarskjöld declared that Russia is seeking not only to get rid of him but to destroy the post of secretary-general and replace it with a "triumvirate which could not function."

OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES

Hammarskjöld said that in other circumstances he would consider the withdrawal of confidence of one of the security council permanent members—Russia, the U.S., Britain, France and Nationalist China—as a reason to resign.

But "in this case the Soviet Union, while refusing its confidence to the secretary-general, has at the same time taken a stand which makes it absolutely clear that, were the present secretary-general to resign, no new secretary-general could be appointed, and the world would have to bow to the wish of the Soviet Union to have this organization, on its executive side, run by a triumvirate which could not function and which most definitely would not provide the instrument for all the uncommitted countries of which they are in need."

UP TO NEUTRALS

Hammarskjöld said, however, he would resign if it were the wish of the uncommitted nations that he do so in their interest and in that of the UN. He added:

"The decision is thus in the hands of all those for whom the Soviet Union pretends to speak, but for whom I do not believe that it does speak," said Hammarskjöld.

DEMOCRACY GUARDIAN

Hammarskjöld traced the history of the UN Congo operation and protested Russia's charge that he was implicated in Lumumba's death.

As late as Nov. 7 Lumumba—then under house arrest after being deposed—had described the UN as the "guardian of democracy" and expressed his confidence in Hammarskjöld. Lumumba later escaped house arrest, starting a chain of events that led to his death.

VILE BETRAYAL

Earlier, Valerian Zorin of Russia had reiterated Moscow's charges that Hammarskjöld and the UN Congo staff were guilty of "a betrayal" of Lumumba as tools of Belgian and other "colonialists."

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson's speech was a rare rebuke of Russia.

BRUSSELS—The crash of a Boeing 707 jet yesterday killed 73 persons including 17 young American figure skating stars. (See sports pages.)

The Sabena airlines plane spun out of control in circling for a landing in a sunlit farmyard, killing a farmer in addition to 61 passengers and 11 crew members. The wreckage burned.

AMONG DEAD

Among the dead was a 39-year-old tobacco farmer from Vanasse, Ont., Victor Maes. A native of Belgium but a naturalized Canadian citizen, he was on his way to attend his mother's funeral.

Also aboard was skating instructor Daniel Ryan, who taught at the Minto Skating Club in Ottawa in 1955 and 1956. Ryan has lived in Indianapolis in recent years.

Among the 49 Americans who perished were Mrs. Maribel Vinson Owen, 49, of Winchester, Mass., and two daughters. Mrs. Owen, nine times U.S. figure skating champion, was coach for the two girls, both members of a U.S. team, heading to Prague, Czechoslovakia, for the world figure skating championship due to open Feb. 22.

BURNING TANKS

Flames fed by bursting fuel tanks quickly engulfed the bulk of the $5,000,000 plane. The flames frustrated rescue efforts of firemen who were speeding to help even while the plane was still erratically aloft, with engines sounding oddly, in the final stage of a flight from New York.

LIKE A BOMB

"It felt like a bomb," the airport tower commander said. Heat was so intense that part of the plane's metal skin melted like butter. Clothing was burned from passengers in the forward cabin and air hostesses said the identification of many will be difficult. Debris was scattered for several hundred yards.

Worldwide Riots Protest Slaying

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mobs attacked Belgian diplomats in Warsaw, set fire to the Belgian embassy in Cairo, and fought a pitched battle at a United Nations Security Council session in New York Wednesday in a fresh wave of violent protests over the slaying of Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba.

Shouting students also led an assault on the American embassy in Cairo, hurling stones and plastering portraits of Lumumba over the walls. Demonstrations were staged in Colombo, Paris, Lyons, London, Washington, Montreal, Dublin, Rome, Prague, Moscow, Accra, Casablanca, Tehran, Khartoum, Melbourne and other cities.

At the United Nations, American Negro demonstrators burst into the security council chamber and staged the wildest melee in its history. More than 25 persons, including UN guards and demonstrators were treated for injuries.

The worldwide demonstrations are aimed at Belgium as former ruler of The Congo, UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and occasionally at the United States and Britain for supporting Hammarskjöld in the face of Soviet demands he resign.

Warsaw students grappled with diplomats in the Belgian embassy and splattered purple ink while ransacking offices for documents to throw into a street bonfire.

The Belgian ambassador in Cairo took refuge with the Canadian ambassador as thick columns of smoke poured from his embassy's shattered windows.

Probe School-Cost Split Now, Says Chatterton

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich would be "heartily in favor" of a royal commission investigation of the distribution of education costs, he said yesterday.

The reeve earlier accused the provincial government of intentionally or otherwise "trying to sneak one in" on municipal property-owners by providing for a new basis of assessment next year—a basis which, he said, will increase greatly the municipalities' share of school costs unless a new cost-sharing formula is introduced.

Especially in view of this situation, he said yesterday, "I think education costs should be thoroughly investigated. Things have changed so much in recent years: the whole system of provincial grants to municipalities, the relations between the province and the municipalities has changed, and the relations between the federal and provincial governments has changed. I would be heartily in favor of a royal commission."

Red China and the U.S.

DURING the American presidential election campaign leading Democratic aspirants for office, including Mr. Kennedy, were sufficiently critical of the Eisenhower administration's attitude toward Red China that it led most members of the Western alliance to assume that a change in the White House would mean a change in U.S.-Red China relations.

Following the election but before actually taking over, further statements were made—particularly by the American UN ambassador-elect, Adlai Stevenson—indicating that such an assumption was correct.

This prospect of a more realistic approach was welcomed by Canada and the United Kingdom, both of which had long sided with the United States in its single-minded purpose of preventing the admission of Red China to the United Nations but only in an effort to present to the world a solid Western front.

Washington's apparent about-face in the matter last week—despite the new administration's full realization that Communist China can no longer be barred membership in the UN on either moral or practical grounds—came as a major and ill-concealed shock to the British government. Doubtless Ottawa had the same reaction though it was kept better hidden from the public.

Whatever the reasoning behind President Kennedy's decision to follow the old Eisenhower policy, no useful purpose can be served. There is little doubt that when Communist China's perennial application for admittance to the United Nations comes before the General Assembly this year it will be supported by the majority of member nations.

If the United States persists in its determination to fight the issue again it may well find its major Western allies playing neutral or sitting on the other side.

The Floor and the Gallery

THE last place wherein one would expect public uproar to disturb the decorum of public business is the United Nations. Here if anywhere the atmosphere should deter spectators from breaking the austerity of the proceedings. So serious a forum, the one vestige of a world court that exists, could be expected to induce in observers only a degree of awe and quiet orderliness.

Habits are catching, of course. Last year the solemnity of the UN was violently upset by some principals themselves, particularly by Premier Khrushchev. The normality of UN debate underwent a change, and not for the better. In some sessions the Assembly resembled a bear garden.

There was at least that precedent to provoke the scene yesterday when a patently organized group of Negroes created a wild fracas in the gallery of the Security Council. It would be no coincidence either that the interruption came during the Congo debate, with the Soviet delegate favoring the Lumumba battle-cry of the rioters.

The point is that the latter felt free to interrupt so august a tribunal as the United Nations. This indicates a serious disregard for the weighty and responsible manner in which important issues, affecting perhaps world peace, should be discussed. It is a weakening of the respect due to the senior authority of international affairs. That is not a pleasing portent.

Legislators everywhere should perhaps ponder this incident. If they themselves do not behave with the propriety their positions require they provide an example for less responsible spectators.

Across James Bay, for instance, there occur on occasion scenes that would not be tolerated among participants in the law chambers of the land. Verbal donnybrooks may entertain spectators but they nevertheless impinge on the dignity that should accompany the deliberation of serious affairs. What happens on the floor affects the response of the gallery.

The repercussion at the UN may be to bar spectators altogether, especially from meetings of groups like the Security Council which obviously should be free from outside interference. This might not be a bad idea in any case, particularly if there is any suspicion of prompting on the part of UN members.

Certainly there is need for greater security measures to ensure no repetition of yesterday's unpleasant incident.

New Party 'Principles'

ANY trade unions with rules against political activity might just as well tear up their constitutions, because the statute organizers of the New Party have found a way around them.

According to Sam Goodman of the Winnipeg Labor Council the way to beat such a constitutional prohibition is to form a New Party Club. So it doesn't matter what the founders of the union had in mind when they drew up the constitution—or for that matter what present members may feel about involvement in partisan politics of an organization formed for something else altogether.

This opinion from a trade union leader comes as an interesting supplement to the recent startling disclosure that, in the view of the founding committee of the New Party, the wishes of an individual trade unionist mean nothing.

It wasn't put as baldly as that, of course, but the intention was plain. Paraphrasing a letter from headquarters to trade unions intimated in an oblique way that if members balked at contributing to the political arm of the CCF-CLC alliance now being forged the same amount of money could be taken out of ordinary union funds, "just as you vote money for other essential purposes."

When it comes to drumming up financial support for the proposed new political party, it is painfully obvious that the organizers have few scruples. Constitutions may be trampled on, union funds raised and the objection of members thrust aside.

Democratic principles are going to get a wonderful boost from the New Party—right out of sight.

Nation in a Hurry

By PHIL NEWSON, UPI Foreign News Analyst

CALL Colombia. In Colombia there is a bitter fight between Latin America and the United States. Colombia should import 500,000 Communists, and then it would receive the same attention which the United States now gives to Europe and Asia.

An educator tells of the need to reduce Colombia's greater than 50 per cent illiteracy, and he recalls standing beside a Colombian air force man who watched with pride an American-built Colombian jet fighter streak through the skies.

"I thought of the one," he said. "One million dollars. For that I could have operated the university for one year."

A businessman tells how Colombians followed the United States' example.

"Every radio in Colombia was tuned to the results," he says. He hopes the new U.S. administration will recognize that Colombia in particular has been a faithful U.S. ally.

A coffee grower asks U.S. help in stabilizing coffee prices whose fall has led to a cut in imports of U.S. machinery.

A sugar grower asks a part in the U.S. quota for Colombia's growing sugar industry, just now reaching the export level.

tion with problems urgently needing a solution.

Discussions with Colombian business and educational leaders disclose general agreement on Colombia's problems—a one-sided economy based on coffee, with illiteracy and low health standards.

But solutions take time and are not easily come by.

Suggestions that the United States help stabilize the coffee market still make no provision for excess production which, in a free market, is likely to increase rather than decrease.

Brazilian attempts to aid coffee growers by government purchases simply made Brazil the largest single owner of coffee beans and did nothing toward a world solution. Sugar has been suggested as a second income producer but it also is in a crowded market.

Meanwhile, there is the threat here as in all of Latin America, of Communist or Castroite penetration.

The Communist Party is legal here but in recent elections polled only a few thousand votes.

There likewise appears to be no great Castro activity.

Here in Cali, public walls are scrawled with many anti-pro-Castro slogans.

But students and labor leaders alike receive invitations to visit Moscow or Havana, and when they do they come back with funds to further the communist cause.

Misery gives them a good foundation upon which to build.

THERE are 52 weeks in the year according to the calendar by which we mark our social engagements and distribute our activities. Some of these weeks, I dare say, we fritter away.

Not that the world is undeserving of our attention. Probably there never was an era when more things erupted to alarm, please, enthuse or otherwise arouse our instincts. If variety be the spice of life, as claimed, no one need nowadays be bored.

The front page alone of a daily newspaper is enough of a mine to titillate the senses of any man. Women, of course, may turn to the social section for their chief delight. And who would say them nay in this turbulent if diverting period of history.

The calendar has weeks but only as a collection of days to enable us to tell Monday from Thursday or vice versa. Sunday, fortunately, still has an aura of its own.

But stemming from the calendar, and attached to it because we must regulate our habits by date, there are other weeks. Special weeks these are, devoted to some human cause or another. If all put together these might add to more than the 52-week calendar contains, but that is no matter.

It is their virtues that count.

I was reminded of this on getting back to work Monday when I found a paper about White Cane Week on my desk. That week, being last week, is now past. But in the calendar sense only. Its observation is a continuing week all through the year.

White Cane Week is designed only to focus our sight-seeing eyes on those for whom the white cane is symbolic of sightlessness. Splendid people they are, facing life with fortitude and courage enough to make the rest of us feel small. And performing some times with such manual and artistic skill as to command amazement as well as admiration.

The paper I have suggests we should share our vision with the blind; writing their letters, describing shop windows and the daily scene around them; taking them for drives, etc. Perhaps most of us feel inhibited about such sharing but obviously we need not. If we can do any of these things we should.

Knowing their own dilemma the blind share with us a valuable piece of advice. Take care of your own eyes, they say. And who is better able to voice such precious warning than they.

Another paper on my desk might be called Heart Week. It may not refer specifically to this current week for as with the white cane the heart is also a continuing source of human interest and compassion.

It is perhaps a wonder that in a period when medical research and attainment is at its greatest peak, when longevity has been increased, there should be so many ailments afflicting the human race. More so than ever before, we conclude, although this will be a misleading conclusion drawn from previous lack of knowledge. Ailments and diseases now pinpointed and classified double in former years were lumped as one.

And heart trouble in its various forms is the most serious health hazard of the nation. It is responsible for more death and disability than all other major diseases combined.

Why this should be so laymen can only guess, perhaps wrongly. The heart is a wonderful instrument. But as with our eyes perhaps we treat it disdainfully. Perhaps we fret it with our worries and strain it with over exertion. This writer doesn't know, not being a doctor. But he thinks the tempo and pressures of modern life have their disturbing effects.

That is why there is call to heed the Heart Foundation and assist it in its efforts to reduce the incidence of this disease. Its program of research and scientific endeavor never stops.

Unlike a white cane week a heart week bids for funds to carry on its mission of human welfare. Here too if one can help it will be appreciated.

Reports from Ottawa

WHEN a member of Parliament is booted out of the Commons it is, I think, an event of such importance as to merit a study of what happened and why.

Last Friday morning Liberal MPs complained about delays in receiving copies of legislation to increase veterans' pensions. Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena, B.C.) pointed out there was no evidence the bill had been printed in English and French as a necessary preliminary to proceeding with it. Following is a synopsis of Hansard's report of what then transpired:

Veterans' Minister Churchill: "It appears opposition MPs do not wish to proceed with the bill today."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker: "It is apparent there is some endeavor being made to hold up this matter."

Liberal Leader Pearson: "We are anxious to get ahead with this bill."

Howard: "The minister of veterans' affairs and the prime minister imputed motives to myself for having raised this point of order that there was something nefarious and underhanded about this point. May I ask them to withdraw their underhanded and scurrilous remarks."

Diefenbaker: "There is nothing of a scurrilous nature in pointing out that the points that have been raised apparently had a design in mind. If he did not have a design, I am sure no one would suggest that he did."

J. F. Browne (Con.—Vancouver-Kingsway): "A clearly slanderous remark has been made against the prime minister. I demand that it be withdrawn."

Howard: "I consider it to be on an equal footing with the imputation of sinister motives by the prime minister and the minister of veterans' affairs against me."

(As Howard repeatedly refused to withdraw the words, Speaker Michener "named" him, a parliamentary penalty that requires the named MP to leave the chamber. The government thereupon moved a motion to expel Howard for the rest of the day. It passed with only seven CCF-New Party MPs voting against it.)

Diefenbaker: "There was some objection raised as to an alleged allegation on my part that what had taken place this morning had been designed to hold up the bill. Any implication of that kind was the farthest thing from my mind."

Pearson: "If this withdrawal could have taken place earlier the whole unhappy business would not have arisen."

CCF Leader Argue: "These remarks (by the MP) might better have been made much earlier. If that had been done I am quite sure that the vote that has been taken would not have been necessary."

Frank Howard, hypersensitive and stubborn, may be regarded as something of a martyr by his fellow socialists, but his prestige outside socialist ranks has not been enhanced.

John Diefenbaker emerges as more the agent provocateur than the badly done by hero.

Speaker Michener, whose diplomatic efforts to cajole all the aggrieved parties into dropping the wrangle were wrecked by Browne's intervention, handled a difficult situation with fairness and firmness.

The Liberals, by voting to censure Howard for his unparliamentary language, acted in the best traditions of the Commons for the maintenance of decorum and dignity. But a good many Tory MPs showed by the abuse they hurled at opposition MPs that decorum is not their strong suit.

Accolade for Sergeants

By GREGORY CLARK

IT was interesting to learn that the new head of a very thriving industry had been a private soldier in the war 20 years ago. He had never even risen to the rank of lance corporal without pay.

"Well, actually," he told me, "the army was the only true education I got. And it was the chance to observe the characteristics and habits of men that I had as a young private soldier that has been more use to me in my own career in business than anything else I can think of."

"For example, I figured out the colonel complex. I don't employ any of colonels now. A colonel is a man who can't possibly know all he ought to know."

"Then there is the sergeant-major complex. I don't have any sergeant-majors in my business. A sergeant-major can't take criticism. He can only hand it out."

"I don't have any majors, because they all want to be colonels. As for captains and lieutenants, they are not too bad, but they are a little impressed with their rank. I don't have any captains or majors in the organization, at the moment."

"But I do have a lot of ex-sergeants. God bless them. A sergeant, it seems to me, is the perfect man. He got to be sergeant because he knew the drill, had a sense of duty, and plenty of guts. Most of our managers and superintendents are ex-sergeants. And as an ex-private, I have great respect for them. That makes me a good boss."

CCF Confused

No Time for Pacifism

(From The Toronto Telegram)

THE debate in Parliament over the expressed opposition of Defence Minister Douglas Harkness to pacifism and neutralism has had one positive result. It has placed the CCF party squarely in the position of advocating pacifist neutralism as a national defence policy for Canada.

This is a position the CCF is entitled to adopt. It is not a position that will win for it much support from the Canadian people.

The debate was precipitated by Erhart Regier, a CCF member from British Columbia, who objected to a report that Mr. Harkness had urged an audience of militia officers to oppose pacifist and "Ban the Bomb" movements.

Since Canadian defence policy is based, as Prime Minister Diefenbaker recently stated in the most unequivocal terms in a speech in Toronto, upon an "equilibrium of power" in world affairs, and the maintenance of Canada's alliances obviously any cabinet minister unwilling to accept this policy would have no recourse other than to resign.

But Mr. Regier and his colleagues have claimed that Mr. Harkness should resign because he regards a policy of unilateral disarmament in matters of nuclear and other weapons as undesirable.

The CCF has shown itself to be hopelessly confused. If war could be avoided by a one-sided decision not to bear arms or to fight, then the matter would be simple indeed. But a firm determination to stand, coupled with the ability to fight, represents the only possible chance of deterring others with aggressive intentions. This is the "equilibrium of power" upon which peace rests, and upon which rests the prospect of working out agreements to reduce armaments.

A strong Western alliance could have halted Nazi Germany in the course of aggression instigated by Hitler. Weakness and disunity made the Second World War possible and inevitable.

American Scene

U.S. Beckons Tourists

By CYRIL DUNN
From Washington

THE British and nationals of other countries with currencies worth having are in for a new and absorbing experience if President Kennedy gets his way with plans for stemming the outflow of American gold reserves and safeguarding the dollar. The full scope of modern American advertising techniques will be used to lure them into visiting the United States.

The idea of attracting more tourists to America is one of many now pouring from Mr. Kennedy's active mind and, as a way of coping with financial difficulty, suggests that milder economic laws operate on this side of the Atlantic than elsewhere. If Britain, for example, has money troubles, the government imposes a puritan austerity, driving the national obligation sharply home by cutting almost everyone's income and suspending every imaginable indulgence. In America economic recession is countered by immediately increasing the spending power of the underprivileged and unemployed and by promising that, if things get worse, then taxes will be cut.

To any crisis over the balance of payments Britain reacts by making foreign travel (among other desirable things) virtually impossible, restricting portable currency to an amount which an enterprising traveller could squander on a single weekend in Calais.

The U.S., on the other hand, has so far done nothing to stop her tourists from flowing round the world, though by raising the customs barrier she has no doubt deterred them from lavishing dollars on the idols of India, the crockery of England and the house-coats of Japan. But on the whole she has preferred to offset the money they spend abroad by getting foreigners to visit America.

Faced with this need to attract paying guests to their own shores the Americans are breaking new ground. For some time now it has not been their active policy. Although the Statue of Liberty holds up a welcoming torch and invites all nations to send over their tired, their poor, their huddled masses yearning to breathe free, this notion of the open door has not very obviously been shared by the chaps at immigration.

As soon as word got about that tourists were wanted, the American press urgently advised the government that gentle old ladies anxious to visit their grandchildren in Ohio should not in future be handled as if they were undercover agents of the Mafia and that potential visitors generally should not be received at the visa counter as if their sole purpose in crossing the ocean was to subvert the American way of life.

But in any event, the skills needed to induce an inward flow of tourists have not been developed in the U.S. since the last war. Almost all foreigners were notoriously broke and those having a bit to spare rarely held it in the right kind of money. When dollars alone were hard in a world of flaccid currencies, they were to be seen abroad only in the wallets of the shady. Those who travelled to America in the days of currency restriction did so on officially approved business and certainly needed no inducement.

Now all that has changed and the full artillery of a gifted profession will shortly be beamed towards Europeans with money to burn, through a new bureau of tourism which Mr. Kennedy will no doubt wish to set up. "It has been customary for tourist officers throughout the world to project images of their homelands rich in color, romance and illusion. But the scope of their imagination has been, by American standards, limited. Beside the alluring symbols the admen on this side may be expected to conjure up, even the genial old gaffer in the shepherd's smock, used by the British Travel Association to typify contemporary life in rural England, will seem a stark figure in its realism."

Until the electronic computers at motivational research have established what secret longings impel the holiday traveller towards America, we may only guess what symbolism will be used. But there are certain obvious areas of delicacy calling for the kind of gently murmured hypnotism known to admen in these parts as "the soft sell."

Plainly the Americans will exploit their historical heritage. Colonial Williamsburg will occur in their travel brochures as often as the Tower of London does in Britain's. But will a retired British colonel react profitably if American guides offer him a conducted tour of battlefields on which the Yankee Rebel humbled the British Redcoat or recommend a trip to Yorktown as the place where Lord Cornwallis surrendered to General Washington?

Most fortunately for America's present purpose and her pressing need, during the next four years this nation will be commemorating with lavish spectacle a conflict which was entirely domestic—the War Between the States. Some of its battles will be fought, once again, authentic in MAX-neuvre and weaponry, a curious pageant of a kind the world has never seen and all set in some of America's loveliest landscapes. The culminating of this unique event, with the nation's need to attract tourists is entirely accidental and suggests that fortune still favors this democracy.

No doubt Madison Avenue will think of a way to exploit even the mildly disagreeable aspects of American life to draw the tourists in, such as the British might advertise warm beer as a quaint experience for visiting Americans! But it is basic to the proper appreciation of the U.S. for the stranger to know that in this country any human being is presumed to be competent, proud and self-sufficient and requires no helping hand.

No Dues But Goodwill

By H. L. KEENLEYSIDE
Chairman, B.C. Power Commission

First of all, what is the Commonwealth?
As to membership, it has at the centre what has been described as "the originating and still nuclear member," the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

After the United Kingdom there are the other original or charter members who gradually joined Britain in equality of status, if not of function, after the First World War: Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Newfoundland. The last now, happily a part of Canada. The population of these new states is generally white (or rather mottled pink) in color, predominantly British in origin, ruled in theory by the Crown through resident royal appointees but in fact enjoying (if that is the right word) responsible government — and, some would add, controlled through their banks by the Scots!

H. L. KEENLEYSIDE

Survived threatening shocks and stresses as at the time of Suez. Co-operation has been far from easy.

Colored States

Then there are the Asian and African states that achieved or accepted membership in the years following the Second World War: India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Malaysia, Ghana, Rhodesia and Nyasaland, Nigeria. The inhabitants of these new states are predominantly colored — although not by any means all of one shade — and have varying forms of government, including the republican and the monarchical.

In some cases they recognize the Queen as their individual monarch, as we do the Queen of Canada; in others she is described, as in the case of India in 1949, only as "the symbol of the free association of its independent member nations and as such the Head of the Commonwealth." The population of these new members totals something like 550,000,000, an aid is growing at the rate of about 14,000,000 a year.

No Common Culture

There are some things that the Commonwealth is not. It is not a geographic unit; it is not marked by unity of language; it has no common culture; it is not united by religion; it is not a military alliance; it is not an economic bloc. But the Commonwealth is not just a series of negations.

No Expulsions

The Commonwealth is a voluntary association. Membership is forced on no one. There are no dues but goodwill. The right of withdrawal is axiomatic. Resignations are regretted but not seriously opposed, and so far there have been no expulsions.

The characteristic that distinguishes members of the Commonwealth from those that are not members is the definite undertaking on the part of the former that they will strive to understand each other and to assist each other by sympathy and mutual aid. In the Commonwealth the participating peoples undertake to recognize their mutual virtues, not to concentrate unduly on each other's faults.

Progressive Step

That the Commonwealth represents a progressive step in international affairs can hardly be questioned. As at least a partial recognition of the fact that no nation is good enough or wise enough to rule another, the Commonwealth makes a real contribution to our efforts to have our praise of liberty and democracy taken seriously in those large areas of the world that are still uncertain in their responses to the political arguments by which the world is riven.

That so many of the newly independent nations after gain their freedom remain without coercion to remain in official policies of the government with Great Britain, that they cannot continue in an association with a nation that maintains such views and enforces such policies? What then should Canada do?

New Creation

But the Commonwealth in its present form is a new creation and its automatic endurance should not be thoughtlessly assumed. If the creation of the Commonwealth has been a marvel, its persistence will be a miracle. But in times like these miracles are the only worthwhile targets.

Great Problem

Today the greatest problem of the Commonwealth is that presented by South Africa. The issue there is a matter of race and race alone. The present government and the majority of the white population of South Africa sincerely believe that there is such an inherent difference between the races, and that the European settlers are so incomparably superior to the native African that no solution to the problem of relations between the two groups can be found except through complete and permanent apartheid. Until recently the government was supported in this view by almost the full force of the Dutch church organizations in South Africa.

Opposition Apparent

The action or inaction of the other Commonwealth countries in relation to official South African proposals for solving this problem will be the most important issue of the next few years for that organization. The question of whether South Africa will be allowed to remain in the Commonwealth after it becomes a republic will have to be faced at the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers in March of this year. (South Africa becomes a republic on May 31, 1961). That there will be opposition from the Asian and African members has already been made apparent. What will, and what should, the older members do? And specifically what should Canada do? There was a time in United Nations affairs when, because of its cautious efforts to avoid giving offense, Canada became known as "The Great Abstainer." (Fortunately that is no longer true.) On this Commonwealth issue there can be no abstainers next March.

Little Evidence

The Canadian government has repeatedly declared itself opposed to the principle and practice of discrimination. On the other hand there is little evidence that Canada is likely to take any initiative to bar South Africa from continued membership. The Canadian government, and I suspect most of the Canadian people, would prefer to sit tight and to hope that over the years the white rulers of South Africa will recognize the inevitable and find some means of solving their problem that will be in accord with modern concepts of both expediency and virtue of justice and morality. That some movement in this direction has already started is apparent in recent dispatches from South Africa, and, in particular, the reported changes in the attitude of a significant element — even in the Dutch Reformed Church.

Canada Must Vote

But what if the Indians, the Malaysians, the Nigerians and the "other" nations that the present government of South Africa are such that they cannot continue in an association with a nation that maintains such views and enforces such policies? What then should Canada do? Should we assent to the withdrawal of the Asian and African members of the Commonwealth in order to maintain membership a country with whose basic racial policy we so strongly disagree? I suggest that if it comes to an issue in this form — and everything possible should be done to avoid such a direct and irreconcilable clash — Canada will have to vote against the continuance of the Union of South Africa as a member of the Commonwealth. But if Canada does partic-part in the barring of South Africa let it be done with regret, with no sanctimonious professions of our own virtue. We have never — and we should thank Providence for it — been faced with the kind of problem that the white settlers of South Africa have had to meet.

So if we must join in denying continued membership in the Commonwealth to the Union of South Africa let us do so with regret, with restraint, and with a lively realization that there, but for the accident of history, we might be ourselves. And let us keep the way open for readmission to our brotherhood when those forces in South Africa that are working for human decency and active justice triumph at last — as triumph they will. When that time comes it would be an appropriate action for Canada, as the senior member of the Commonwealth apart from

Big, Costly Project Parley Topic Today

A possible project costing several hundred thousand dollars and requiring three or four years to complete will be discussed today by the Capital Improvement District Commission chairman J. Everett Brown yesterday.

Bigger Shop Plaza Urged in Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Commercial Street merchants will be canvassed for support for enlargement this year of Nanaimo's shopping plaza to be held June 22, 23 and 24.

Ald. Haig Burns, who chairs the six-man committee in charge of arrangements, said it is proposed to add the block extending from Wharf and Skinner Streets north to Bastion.

Last year only the block from Terminal Avenue to Wharf was closed to traffic.

The street will be closed to vehicles, if merchants approve, for three full shopping days.

Everett Brown yesterday confirmed that a project taking this long to complete — and the commission has a $200,000 annual budget — is to be discussed, and has involved almost nine months of study.

But he wouldn't disclose the nature of it. CIDC policy is to withhold such information unless and until a project is approved by cabinet.

There was some speculation, however, that it might involve the rundown harbor-front area around the old courthouse. Recreation and conservation department is to occupy the courthouse when the new Victoria Law Courts building is opened, and redevelopment of the Bastion Square area as a parklike tourist centre has been suggested and has won some civic support — as long as it doesn't cost the city too much.

Guaranteed by Carnation to nourish and protect the baby on a partly-skimmed milk formula Morning Milk

If your doctor prescribes a partly-skimmed milk for your baby, ask your grocer for Morning. Morning is the only partly-skimmed evaporated milk that meets the rigid quality standards of the makers of Carnation.

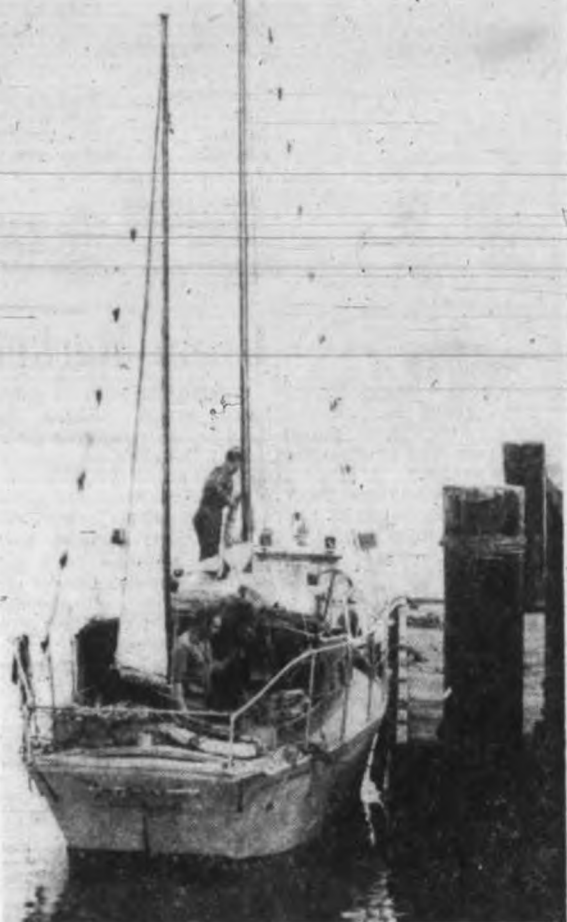

Digestible: Morning is more digestible for many babies because the butterfat content has been reduced.

Nourishing: Morning is pure, fresh milk with all the natural food values so important to proper growth. Vitamin D — the sunshine vitamin — has been increased to 800 Units per pint.

Safe: Morning's quality is guaranteed by the strict laboratory controls of Carnation. And Morning is protected by a can that is specially designed for evaporated milk.

Economical: Morning — the partly-skimmed evaporated milk made by Carnation — gives you quality at an important saving. Compare prices today with other brands of partly-skimmed evaporated milk. You save up to 25%.

Use Morning for your cooking and coffee creaming, too!

32-Foot Ketch

South Pacific Their Target

By CHARLES THOMPSON

MILL BAY — Two young bachelors tacked out of this peaceful cove aboard a 32-foot ketch yesterday on the first leg of a journey they look forward to with gusto.

For one, 26-year-old Derek Naylor, it is the starting point of a life-long plan to see the South Pacific in his own sail boat.

To the other, veteran English sailor Peter Lawson, it is possibly the last adventurous journey for a man who aims to settle down at journey's end.

"We're going to make it, you can bet your boots on that," said Naylor, a Cobble Hill chicken farmer who built the ketch "Bachelor's Delight" for $4,000.

Yesterday marked the start of their "shakedown" cruise and final departure all rolled into one. They sailed out under a sunny sky and hoping for a brisk breeze to blow them into the central Pacific.

Final destination of the ketch is New Zealand, where Lawson plans to find employment.

"There are three jobs to like to worry about being out of work," he said.

Skipper Naylor said he will return to his Cobble Hill home after the New Zealand jaunt.

"I'll be back — I'm not going around the world. It may take a year or more, but I'll work my way back," he said.

UN 'Police Force' CCF Role for Army

OTTAWA (UPI) — National CCF leader Hazen Argue last night said Canada's best role in defence should be the maintenance of a conventional armed force available on call for use in United Nations police operations around the world.

The tragic events in the Congo, Argue said, "show the impelling necessity of a strong United Nations police force to prevent conflict and murder and protect the peace."

"When the minister of external affairs was asked to protest the beating of Premier Lumumba," he said, "his answer was that it would keep us very busy if we were to protest all the beatings which take place in the Congo."

The Conservative government was hesitant and non-committal when asked to increase Canada's forces in the Congo and when requested to send food to the Congo to prevent starvation," Argue said.

Parking Ban Mooted On Fort Street Section

City public works committee yesterday recommended prohibition of parking on the south side of Fort from Foul Bay to Lee.

It also recommended widening of Vancouver between Yates and View, with property owners paying a small part of the cost.

The committee asked city engineer James Garnett to study and report on a suggestion from Ald. Michael Griffin that parking should be permitted on hard-surfaced portions of boulevard, perhaps by annual permit.

It recommended that, "to show an example in providing off-street parking for employees," provision be made in the Cavanaugh Street parking lot for free accommodation of up to 20 cars of civic employees who may need them in their work, during normal office

Birthday Tattoo Closer

Civic and armed forces officials last night took another step toward organizing a military tattoo to be staged during the Victoria Centennial in 1962.

Representatives tentatively agreed the show should be staged for five days, each performance lasting 2½ hours.

Exact form the tattoo will take was not agreed on, but one suggestion was that each unit of the armed forces put on a half-hour show. The tattoo would begin with a march-past of all forces represented, winding up with a fireworks display.

Possibility of staging a historical pageant was discussed, but armed forces representatives agreed this should be taken up by another committee as it would be more a civil affair.

Hawks Keep String Going

Habs Meet Challenge, Down Leafs

Montreal Canadiens, by no means ready to play dead in the National Hockey League race, met their biggest challenge of

GP	W	L	T	P	A	Pts
Toronto	30	12	16	2	54	53
Montreal	30	18	9	3	60	49

Boston	30	22	6	2	39	33

the season last night and came through with a 3-1 victory over the Leafs at Toronto.

Trailing the front-running Leafs by six points going into the game, the Habs could have been dealt a knockout blow with a defeat. Instead, led by goalie Jacques Plante at his flamboyant best, they put themselves very much back in the picture, four points behind Toronto with two games in hand.

Plante, in only his fourth game since returning to action after a knee injury, was never in better form at Toronto this season. In fact, it was his performance alone that saved the game from being one of the year's dullest.

Included in his 25 saves were brilliant stops on Tim Horton, Billy Harris, Dickie Duff and Ron Stewart in the second period, when Leafs poured in on him.

Meanwhile Gerry McNamara was turning in a creditable effort in his first stint replacing the injured Johnny Bower. He made 26 stops, and came up with several good saves. Jean Beliveau and Marcel Bonin were the only Canadiens to beat him, as Donnie Marshall's final goal was scored on an empty net in the final seconds.

BIG M SHADOWED
The league's two top scorers, Toronto's Frank Mahovlich and Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion, failed to get a point in the slow, close-checking contest. Mahovlich, as usual, was closely shadowed by Dickie Moore.

Rookie Dave Keon gave Toronto the lead in the first period, but later crashed into the boards and left the game with a bruised thigh. Bonin's goal at 15:04 of the period tied it up, and Beliveau won it for Canadiens in the second period when Moore dug the puck from a corner and fed a perfect pass to Beliveau, alone in front of McNamara.

HAWKS HOT
Meanwhile, Chicago Black Hawks ran their latest unbeaten streak to six games

OTHER CRASHES
Previously the largest number of athletes to die in air travel was 16 players of the California State Polytechnic college football team killed in a plane crash at Toledo, Ohio. That tragedy—in which six others aboard also died—occurred less than four months ago—on Oct. 29, 1960.

In 1948 a fiery plane crash in the mountains above Turin, Italy, wiped out 14 members of the Torino soccer squad, including 10 all-Italy players.

MANCHESTER CRASH
The star-studded Manchester United 11—a soccer team which to its English and Irish fans was the equivalent of the New York Yankees—lost eight men in a plane crash en route home from a match in Yugoslavia in 1958. A few who survived were unable to play football again.

The total toll in the Manchester United crash, which occurred at snow-covered Munich airport, was 21, including eight British sports writers.

Eight Danish soccer stars also died on last July 16 when their twin-engine plane crashed while taking off for a match abroad. Three were Olympic with a 3-2 win over New York Rangers. Their club record, set earlier this season, is eight in a row.

Glen Hall, who leads the league in shutouts with six, had another one going for 50 minutes last night, then gave up goals to Johnny Wilson and Dean Prentice. He made a total of 31 saves.

Ab McDonald scored his 14th and 15th goals and Bobby Hull his 25th for the Hawks. Other scorers were Ted Sloan and Dollard St. Laurent.

World Skating Goes On as Scheduled Despite Loss of Entire U.S. Team

(From AP, Reuters and UPI)

World figure skating championships will go on as scheduled in Prague, Czechoslovakia, next week despite a Belgian plane crash that wiped out the entire 17-member United States team Wednesday morning.

First reaction to the Brussels air crash which took 73 lives in all, came from Davos, Switzerland, where George Haesler, secretary-general of the International Skating Union, said the championships would be cancelled "as a sign of mourning for our sports comrades."

However, a spokesman for the organizing committee in Prague announced later in the afternoon that the event would go on as scheduled, Feb. 22-28. Mrs. Maribel Owen, Boston, Mass., and her two skating daughters were among the party that perished. Laurence Owen, 16, had just won the United States and North American championships during the past week. Her sister, Maribel, 20, and skating partner Dudley Richards, also of Boston, were killed as well.

Names of those on the team were Roger Campbell, North Hollywood, Calif.; Donna Carter, North Hollywood, Calif.; Pat and Robert Dineen, New York; William Hickox, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Gregory Kelley, Newton, Center, Mass.; Bradley Lord, Swampscott, Mass.; Denise McMinn, Lomita, Calif. (coach); Rhode Michelson, Long Beach, Calif.; Laurence and Maribel Owen, Boston, Mass.; Doug Ramsey, Detroit; Dudley Richards, Boston; Diane Sherblom, Los Angeles; Stephanie Westfield, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Ian and Ray Hadley, Seattle.

Mrs. Owen skated for the U.S. in the 1932 Olympics and was American champion nine times during that era.

The dead were youngsters who had worked and competed together since childhood; in many cases brothers and sisters died together.

Laurence had just edged out Wendy Griner of Toronto by a slim margin in the North American meet at Philadelphia last weekend and the two were eagerly looking forward to a rematch in Prague for the world title.

Frank J. Shaughnessy, general manager of the Canadian Olympic team, said the crash was "a terrible tragedy... a real heartbreak."

Shaughnessy said the Canadian team also had left from Philadelphia but aboard a different airline than the American team. "They split up into two groups and were to meet in Amsterdam then go on to Prague together."

The planes carrying the Canadians arrived in Europe on schedule.

In 1948 a fiery plane crash in the mountains above Turin, Italy, wiped out 14 members of the Torino soccer squad, including 10 all-Italy players.

In 1950, a plane crash at Fortaleza, Brazil, killed 13 Brazilian athletes.

Warriors Singing Blues After Long Look at Gates

WINNIPEG (CP)—Owner Jack Perrin of the Western Hockey League Winnipeg Warriors took a mournful look at attendance figures Wednesday and said: "It's ridiculous knocking myself on the noggin and saying, 'Maybe some day things will be better.'"

The warriors have drawn 44,000 fans for their 20 home games so far this year. This has meant about $50,000 for the team—far below the amount needed to meet costs.

"Admittedly our drawing power isn't great, but I do feel we deserve more than we've been getting," said Perrin. "A better break in the scheduling would help, but being a distant point from the other entries doesn't help."

Other WHL teams have declined to come to Winnipeg for single games and have been making two-night stands on Mondays and Wednesdays. "We'd be in favor of playing a few Friday night dates, despite late night shopping," Perrin said, "but because teams won't gamble on single dates, our purpose is defeated."

With no Sunday hockey and Saturday night lost to the National Hockey League on television, only four days are left to choose from—and one night is no better than another.

"Due to the doubleheaders, we are forced into using two of the four days. A bad game on a Monday and we're dead on the Wednesday. A bad game Wednesday and they'll stay away the next week."

"Looking at it from another angle, we have half as many home games as the other teams," Perrin said. "People can't afford paying to see two games in three days, let alone by the same teams."

The Warrior owner said he is tired of trying to make a go of the operation under present conditions. However, he hasn't thought of moving.

"Maybe all the idiots have left Winnipeg—with the exception of one," he said. "I think it's well past the time I started adding one and one. It comes out one in Winnipeg."

Alberta Curloffs Friday

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta men's curling finals will be played here Friday and Saturday with four rinks in the double knockout competition.

The regional representatives are:
Southern Alberta—Nick Lashuk, Calgary;
Northern Alberta—Hec Gervais, Edmonton;
Peace River—Walt Ashley, Dawson Creek; and Northwest Territories—Tom Nuttall, Yellowknife.

The finals of the two divisions will be televised in Edmonton Saturday morning and afternoon. If different teams win, necessitating a third Saturday game, it will not be televised because of previous network commitments.

The winner will represent Alberta in the national finals in Calgary starting March 6.

Now Alf Can Buy the Farm

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (AP)—Six months ago, Alfred Gonzales was laid off by a California aircraft plant. He was going to work Monday, for the first time since then, at a $400-a-month job milking cows to support his wife and four children.

On Sunday he won $40,713 on a $2 horse-race bet. Gonzales, 28, and his brother, Tony, 39, were the only ticket holders to pick all six winners in the fifth through 10th races at the Caliente track.

Was Horse Impaired?

TORONTO—Michael Seradiuk, 35, was convicted of leaving the scene of an accident after his horse and wagon had been involved with two cars.

He was fined $150 or 10 days after one motorist testified he heard "galloping" and saw a horse pulling a bakery wagon fall down after it struck his car and forced it into another. Another said he heard "clatter of hooves" before his car was struck.

Both drivers said Seradiuk had been drinking and was "fighting with everyone."

"Was the horse impaired too?" asked Magistrate T. S. Elmore.

Crown attorney James Crossland regretted the Criminal Code did not permit a man to be charged with impaired driving while he was in charge of a horse and wagon.

While Jack Webb was directing "The Last Time I Saw Archie," co-star Robert Mitchum chatted with several bit players on the sidelines. One asked how some top stars make the money they do.

"That's one unfortunate part of this crazy business," Mitchum observed. "Each time an actor does something new, he's got to ask for more money. You either move up or out."

Later that day, one of Mitchum's listeners was given an additional line of dialogue, and Webb voluntarily upped his salary from $100 to $125 for the day's work.

Webb shot the scene over again the next day and told the young actor, "You're in luck, another $125 today."

"I want $150 today," the player replied.

Webb was astonished. "Son, you've been getting some bad advice. When someone tries to give you a break, don't push it. What's the idea, anyway?"

"Someone told me if I didn't get more money the second time, no one would want me," the player admitted.

"The next time that idiot gives you advice, turn a 'deaf ear,'" Webb advised. "Now, get Mitchum for this shot."

From the back of the group came Mitchum's voice. "He's not here, but here's an idiot that looks like him!"

Painted 'Women' in Bars Turn into Minors in Court

Lost Loggers

Strait Hides Four

YANCOUVER (CP)—Scorers Wednesday combed isolated Georgia Strait beaches for traces for four survivors of the logging camp tender Green Valley missing since Monday.

Bodies of four of the eight men who set out in the 40-foot vessel on a 15-mile holiday trip from Texada Island for Penler Harbour, have been recovered.

The men were employed by Green Valley Timber Co. which operates a logging camp on Texada.

Two of the victims were Ken Wilson of North Vancouver, a logger, and Roger Jensen, 39, Vancouver, camp cook.

The strange manner in which a girl could pass for being legal age in a beer parlor yet was obviously under age when she appeared in court was mentioned in the legislature yesterday by W. H. Murray (SC—Prince Rupert).

The member was speaking on the problems of beer parlor operators who had to cope with minors.

"There are girls who can influence the years by using cosmetics," said Mr. Murray. "Sometimes they are sent into hotels by spotters to buy a drink. The police come in, and there is a court case."

BOBBY SOCKS

"When such a girl comes to court she no longer has any makeup on, her hair is done differently and she probably wears saddle shoes and hobby socks instead of high heels."

"And the judge will say, 'How did you ever serve a girl who looks as young as this?'"

Mr. Murray said it was incidents such as these that could lead to fines or jail terms for barmen and operators.

SUPPER HOUR

The member also suggested that the 6 to 7 p.m. beer parlor closing regulations should be stopped when other bars were open, but was opposed in this by David Barrett (CCF—Dewdney).

'Phony' Competition

Squire Urges Probe Of Petroleum Costs

A complete inquiry into the costs of refining and distribution of petroleum products in B.C. was called for yesterday by John Squire (CCF—Alberni).

"Indiscriminate gas price setting by the refineries, irresponsible and wasteful gas station building by these same people, together with unjustified tax applications by this government has placed a provincial anchor around the necks of the car owners and trucking concerns of this province," said the CCFer.

NOT CONVINCED

He added the CCF was not "convinced" of the necessity to boost gasoline and diesel oil taxes by three cents a gallon.

"The placing of heavy taxes on an uncontrollable service is not in the best interests of either private citizens or industry," he continued.

Mr. Squire said the high cost of oil supplies to the consumer could be laid to:

- Private ownership and high profits of gas lines.
- Unnecessary waste of investment money and equipment in retail outlets.
- Duplication of same gas under different names.
- Duplication of advertising in a "trumped up, phony" competitive field.

Socred Too Harsh

A vitriolic dispute over charges that the CCF and Liberals had engaged in character "assassination and mutilation" flared in the legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz ruled that such terms, used by W. H. Murray (SC—Prince Rupert) were unparliamentary and the member was forced to withdraw.

The government backbencher singled out Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson and CCFer Alex Macdonald (Vancouver East) for condemnation.

CCF leader Robert Strachan protested that Mr. Murray was reading his speech and Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie) jumped up to say that if the Speaker could stop the CCF for reading speeches he could stop the government side as well.

Mr. Speaker Shantz objected strongly to the inference that he was stopping the opposition for something but permitting the government to go ahead. Mr. Gargrave apologized.

'Thousands Wasted'

Problems in Welfare Fought but Not Cured

The provincial government was told Wednesday it is wasting hundreds of thousands of dollars in suppressing social problems when it should be taking preventive and curative actions instead.

David Barrett (CCF—Dewdney), a professional social worker holding a masters degree, made the statement and offered the government a three-point approach for an immediate start on a program that he said would not only save money but would prevent great human tragedy.

Mr. Barrett, speaking in the budget debate in the legislature, recommended these steps be taken immediately:

- Establishment of a comprehensive research program to check and evaluate all services for children, including local schools and teachers.
- Co-ordination of the work of the child welfare department, the department of correction and the mental health services to form a united service to troubled children.
- Aggressively seek out in each community the youngsters who are exhibiting behavior problems, and provide them and their families with the services "they so desperately need."

He urged these steps "if not to save the human tragedy of the hundreds of disturbed people who are filling our institutions, then to save the taxpayer money by reducing the numbers who will need this care."

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Mr. Barrett said protection of the taxpayers' money is lacking in British Columbia's social welfare services, because the approach is one of depression rather than solution.

He said the boys' industrial school backs up this argument. About $2,700 a child was spent there, but staff and facilities were such that no positive atmosphere could be created and a bewildered child came out more bewildered than when he went in.

The child was returned to his community without any extensive follow-up service, back where he began with the same problems "and surely on the road to continuous institutional experience."

'BET EIGHT OF 10'

Twenty such boys cost $34,000 a year, Mr. Barrett said, and the taxpayers would be better served if a highly skilled social worker was employed at a salary of $10,000 to work with 20 such boys. There would be a $14,000 saving and the treatment would be such that "I'd bet eight out of 10" would be removed from the social problem rolls.

He said Mr. Black had not given the true nature and seriousness of the problems confronting the province in this field.

He said the minister had made no mention of Miss Ruby McKay or the reasons for which she resigned as superintendent of child welfare last year. She said later that government policies made it impossible for her to continue to do an adequate job.

CHALLENGE TO DENY

"I challenge the government to deny her charges and prove them wrong, or take the necessary action to correct them," Mr. Barrett said.

The minister had discussed persons who receive social assistance by fraud, and while admitting these people were few in number, he had left the opposite impression, Mr. Barrett said.

Socred Tells CCF:

Share Some of Blame For Unemployment

A Social Credit backbencher said yesterday governments were not as much to blame for unemployment as were "organizations" which are continually seeking higher wages and shorter hours.

But, added Willis Jefcoat (SC—Salmon Arm) he was not opposed to organized labor.

"I'm a farmer at heart and a farmer is not a man who asks for bigger profits and less hours," said the member, first elected in the last provincial election. "Many people who are out of work would be much happier working than losing their homes, cars and other belongings."

The present situation, he said, wasn't the fault of the government—federal, municipal or provincial.

"Accept some of the responsibility yourself," he told the CCF. "Get down to brass tacks and stop all this bickering."

"I don't blame our governments as much as those organizations who are continually asking for higher wages," he added. "Any organization in a democratic country should elect its leaders and those men should not be indispensable. When they fall... they should be put aside."

New Cans, Signs, Enforcement

Fight Litter Four Ways
City Committee Urges

A four-pronged attack on litterers is in prospect in downtown Victoria.

Public works committee yesterday decided:

- To recommend to city council that it approve purchase of 10 litter cans of a new design, to be installed on Douglas at a cost of up to $1,000. (See below.) Design of the new cans is such that litter won't easily blow out of them, and bulky parcels of garbage, which, officials said, some people bring to town with them in the morning—can't readily be deposited.
- To install signs on or near litter cans warning the public that dropping litter on the street is an offence punishable by fine. Wording will be decided later.
- To call if necessary for stricter enforcement of anti-litter law.
- To investigate the possibility of passing a bylaw prohibiting pamphlets and handbills from being placed on or in parked cars. "It's certainly a nuisance to drivers," said low.

city engineer James Garnett, "and a litter nuisance too."

The committee decided not to recommend night flushing of downtown streets when Mr. Garnett reported that the cost, for the central business district alone, would be $200 or more a day.

"That cost is just prohibitive," said Ald. Geoffrey Edge-

Squire Accuses Big Firm

Woodworkers
'Intimidated'

Officials of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. were accused of "outright intimidation" yesterday during a speech in which John Squire (CCF—Alberni) called for a labor department investigation of the company.

The member, an official of the International Woodworkers of America, said the company had laid off men yet was loading those still on the job with overtime.

"In some cases it has gone past the point of requiring men to work overtime to the point where it is outright intimidation," said Mr. Squire. "Workers once were called into management's office and advised that they must work overtime on threat of dismissal."

The CCFer said the reason behind this move was to cut the company's contribution towards medical coverage. Even workers who wanted to keep up their MSA payments were told they could not do so.

"This is the story of the ruckus in Port Alberni at the present time," said Mr. Squire. "During the present dispute in Port Alberni, the union members and the public have been treated to the usual propaganda designed to depict officers as union bosses in an attempt to separate officers from the members."

He said management had told crews that by refusing to work overtime they were contravening the statutes of B.C. "They say 'You have to do this. Mr. Bennett has passed Bill 43,'" he said.

"That's the serfdom law," said Gordon Dowling (CCF—Burnaby).

Asks MLA

Why
Endure Alone?

There's no point in basement fallout shelters, John Squire (CCF—Alberni) told the legislature yesterday.

"I have a 12-year-old son sitting in the gallery today and I'm not showing myself to be so stupid by telling him humanity's only escape is to build a bomb shelter in the southeast corner of our basement," he said.

"Are you going to run to your neighbor's when the bombs start falling?" called Don Smith (SC—Victoria).

Mr. Squire said he had no desire to be the only survivor in the block.

"What's the good of surviving when there are no neighbors, no birds, no trees?" asked the CCFer. "What is life made of?"

Gagliardi
To Speak

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi will talk on current events at a special dinner meeting of the public affairs group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce Feb. 23.

After the meeting members will attend the evening session in the provincial legislature. The dinner will be held at 6:15 p.m. in the Empress Hotel.

Pamphlet Issue

CCF; Black
Tiff Again

Welfare Minister Wesley Black was taken to task in the legislature yesterday for criticizing the CCF for distributing pamphlets publicizing services available from the provincial welfare department.

"And I still do," Mr. Black told David Barrett (CCF—Dewdney).

Mr. Barrett said that was strange because a Victoria welfare office had thought the pamphlets so good that it had ordered 25 more.

The minister promptly asked whether the person who had ordered the pamphlets was a man who was standing as the New Party candidate in the Esquimalt-Saanich byelection—Glen Hamilton.

He was not the person, said Mr. Barrett.

Afterwards it was learned the pamphlets had been ordered by city welfare director William Honson.

Traffic Officer
Warns Gagliardi

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi, who has been caught in the law's toils before, found himself in the same predicament again yesterday on the Patricia Bay Highway.

This time he got off with a warning for following too closely behind another car.

Central Saanich constable Pat Carson, who pulled the minister over, said Mr. Gagliardi seemed irate at being stopped, and said something to the effect he was always being picked on.

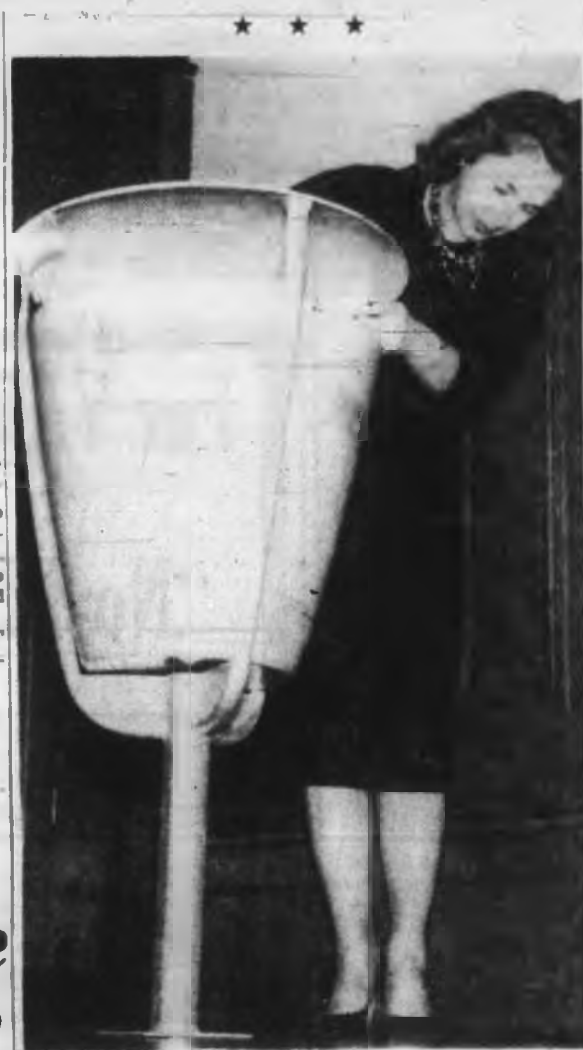

"I didn't want to give the driver a ticket from the start and I didn't know who he was until I saw the licence, but if he had been out to give a ticket speeding, I would have got one for his attitude," said Const. Carson.

Panel Will Discuss

'Green Gold' Future

A panel discussion titled "Green Gold—Tomorrow's Trees" will be held at a panel meeting of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association at 8 p.m. today in the Douglas Building cafeteria.

New Look?

New type of litter-bin which may appear soon on Douglas is inspected at city hall by Mrs. Beryl Watson. Public works committee yesterday recommended buying 10 at installed cost of up to $1,000. Actually they cost about $65 each. They have been advocated by city engineer's department as fitting in with "new look" on downtown streets when old power poles are taken down and wiring is underground. (Colonist photo.)

Dodsworth, Hawkins

Tourist Officials
Clash on Ferries

Two spokesmen for the tourist industry in Victoria clashed yesterday over the need for more ferries to handle tourist traffic in 1962.

Walter Dodsworth, head of the Chamber of Commerce tourist industry group, said he was willing to admit ferry service appeared to be adequate for this year's tourist needs. But, he added, he was concerned about the future, next year in particular.

30-Second Meeting

City council yesterday held one of the briefest meetings on record.

It met to approve its own decision—made in committee—to appoint W. W. Cameron as the new city prosecutor, which took about 30 seconds.

James Dodsworth, a late Carl Pendray and condolence to his family.

"We must be certain that we maintain adequate service," he said. "What I propose is that the B.C. government should study the possibility of entering the Victoria-Seattle service in 1962, purely as a precautionary measure."

Mr. Dodsworth added: If the CPR or Black Ball or anyone else is prepared to give us an assurance this service will continue in the foreseeable future, I'd be quite happy."

Victoria and Island publicity commissioner William Hawkins earlier had taken issue with Mr. Dodsworth's suggestion that provincial ferries should operate to Seattle to help transport tourists in 1962.

Mr. Hawkins said the CPR had informed him that it would operate a once-daily service between Victoria and Seattle this summer. This, along with other ferry services, would provide a daily capacity of 33,000 passengers and 3,000 cars.

"It would seem we are well prepared," said Mr. Hawkins.

Invited to take part will be Victoria's member of Parliament and members of the legislature, representatives of the area's councils and school boards, the chamber of commerce and Victoria's Labor Council, contractors' groups and the ministerial association.

A Greater Victoria conference on unemployment yesterday was set for Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the city council chambers.

The meeting was called with council's approval by public works committee, which has recently questioned the effectiveness of the senior govern-

Fifty members representing 28 organizations at the Victoria Labor Council meeting last night unanimously voted to oppose the proposed three-cent provincial gasoline tax.

Bennett in Federal Fray:

As Saanich Goes
So Goes Nation

Premier Bennett will take an active part in the Esquimalt-Saanich federal byelection campaign in support of a Social Credit candidate to be picked by a nominating convention March 8.

"This is the start of the next federal election," he told some 250 Social Credit supporters in Colwood Hall last night. "This will be a test. All the eyes of Canada will be on this riding."

He pledged the support of all Social MLAs and cabinet ministers and added, "I look forward to taking an active part in the byelection."

'WE WANT 52'

"All we need to win this election is 52 per cent of the vote. We want 52 per cent."

With Gen. Peakes out it is a foregone victory for Social Credit but we don't want just a little majority, we want a majority that will ring across this country."

"If we win this election we will win the next federal election. This is the key."

MARCH 8

The nominating convention will be held in Mount View High School March 8.

A number of MLAs and cabinet ministers attended the meeting, including Mrs. Buda Brown, Works Minister W. N. Chant, Recreation Minister Earle Westwood, Education Minister Leslie Peterson, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Wilkinson and Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

While his speech was basically a rousing call for Social Credit to win the byelection, Mr. Bennett also touched other subjects.

GIBSON 'ON RUN'

Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson: "Almost before the House was in session he was apologizing to the minister of mines . . . and he has been on the run since."

Highways Minister Gagliardi:

Idle Firemen
Stay to Help

Saanich firemen responding to an alarm on Shelbourne Street yesterday found they weren't needed—but stayed a while, to help anyway.

Workmen behind 4317 Shelbourne were clearing away some old buildings and a passerby turned in an alarm. Firemen helped pull one building apart to reduce the danger to surrounding structures.

The federation recently circulated a petition form to unions to be sent to Labor Minister Peterson. It would "protect the introduction of any legislation unduly restricting the fundamental rights of labor" and says labor is "prepared to fight any such measures."

"In our offices we watch production charts go up and employment charts go down—it has come to the point where we can't retreat any further," he said.

"The federation recently circulated a petition form to unions to be sent to Labor Minister Peterson. It would 'protect the introduction of any legislation unduly restricting the fundamental rights of labor' and says labor is 'prepared to fight any such measures.'"

"I haven't asked permission from the premier but I say again I'm 100 per cent behind organized labor," said new M.L.A. Willis Jefferson (SC—Salmon Arm) in the House.

Observers took this to mean that Mr. Jefferson doesn't like the new legislation . . . and isn't afraid of saying so.

Yards Ready
For Switch

Victoria shipyards are fully prepared to make changes in yard facilities needed to build conventional submarines, should the RCN decide to make the switch, either fully or partly, in its new building program, officials said yesterday.

Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, said his firm was prepared to make the financial outlay necessary to install new facilities for handling heavier sections and to learn new technical skills for installation and testing in confined spaces.

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd., said the changes required for building of conventional submarines would probably not take more than a period of a few months to complete, if it became necessary.

They were commenting on Ottawa reports that the defence department is now grappling with the problem of a new shipbuilding program for the RCN. Informants in the capital indicated this week the government will soon receive its recommendations dealing mainly with the question of whether to build conventional submarines, new destroyers or both.

The final six destroyer escorts on the navy's current shipbuilding program are now under construction—the first of the new Mackenzie class, Saskatchewan, was launched at VMD Jan. 31.

The Ottawa report said it was no secret the navy wants submarines for two purposes: To help train the destroyer fleet in anti-submarine warfare and for a possible operational role in the event of war.

Labor Told

'Every Job
In Peril'

As long as there are armies of unemployed workers in British Columbia "your job is in danger," Pat O'Neill, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, told Victoria Labor Council members last night.

"We have the worst unemployment situation today since the depression years, and as long as men have to take part in mass-produced bread lines, all workers are in danger of their jobs," he said.

In many cases men unemployed for months have been hired by management for a decrease in salary, putting a regular worker on the bread line, he added.

"In our offices we watch production charts go up and employment charts go down—it has come to the point where we can't retreat any further," he said.

The federation recently circulated a petition form to unions to be sent to Labor Minister Peterson. It would "protect the introduction of any legislation unduly restricting the fundamental rights of labor" and says labor is "prepared to fight any such measures."

"I haven't asked permission from the premier but I say again I'm 100 per cent behind organized labor," said new M.L.A. Willis Jefferson (SC—Salmon Arm) in the House.

Observers took this to mean that Mr. Jefferson doesn't like the new legislation . . . and isn't afraid of saying so.

For a party which took the seat in the last election by a 14,000 majority that sure represents a lack of confidence.

Are you going to put the fourth government ferry on the Victoria-Seattle run? we asked Premier Bennett the other day.

"My friend," he said, "just say you asked me the question and I smiled."

Shueks, we say that all the time.

TOP PRIORITY: At the opening of the legislature yesterday Dan Campbell (SC—Comox) arose on a point of personal privilege.

He informed the House that he had just learned he was the father of six-pound eight-ounce Shannon Jean—his fourth child.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our 13-year-old daughter Jean won a TV set in a raffle. The family set is in need of extensive repairs so we have her set in the living room.

We must ask Jean's permission to turn the set on and she decides which programs we watch. If the TV is used when she isn't at home she gets furious. If she's punished for misbehaving she retaliates by not letting anyone watch TV. How far do you think we should go in letting her dominate the family because she owns the TV set. We want to be fair but we think there's a limit to what parents can take. — DONT KNOW

Dear Don't Know: Does Her Royal Highness pay you when she wants to use the telephone or the hot water? Does she pay you for cooking her meals or washing her clothes? Does she pay you for the privilege of living in the house? Of course not because she's a minor member of the family. As a member of the family who takes, she should also give. Few 13-year-olds have the opportunity to give the family a TV set. If she isn't happy to do it then MAKE her happy and right now. Tell her the TV now belongs to the entire family and you'll tell her what shows she can watch.

Dear Ann Landers: Last year my husband's father died. After the funeral the three sons and three daughters got together and decided their mother should divide her time between them.

Visitor Gives Talks On Guide Leadership

Australian Guiding does more for the physically handicapped child. Miss Mary Lambe has observed during her latest visit to Canada.

And Miss Lambe should know as she is advisor for the handicapped section of the Girl Guides in Melbourne, in the state of Victoria.

A former medical social worker, Miss Lambe spent the summer in Britain and on the continent before coming to Canada in the fall.

Since then she has given talks on Girl Guide leadership training in most of the major cities in Canada. Already she has given two such talks in Victoria and will speak again this evening at the Guide Pandora Street headquarters.

Guiding in Australia is fundamentally the same as in Canada although there is a variation in detail. Miss Lambe thinks. Australia, being primarily an agricultural country, affects the general outlook even among children, according to the visitor.

She also thinks that Canadian girls grow up, at least superficially, quicker than their Australian contemporaries.

CATCHES UP

A Canadian girl at 15 years is much more socially advanced and has more poise, Miss Lambe says, although as an Australian girl seems to catch up quickly once she starts.

Speaking of her work with physically handicapped girls, Miss Lambe says the greatest satisfaction comes in watching the growth and development of the handicapped. Once they feel they are included and that they can do things that others can, even if more slowly, the change in personality is tremendous.

Last year, the Guide Golden Jubilee year, handicapped guides, including crippled, deaf and dumb children, raised $500 at a sale of their own handicrafts. The money was sent to European refugee camps.

Another project was arranging for a group of handicapped to fly 1,000 miles to a Guide camp. Taking part in these activities helped the children greatly, Miss Lambe thinks.

Miss Lambe is a guest of an old school friend, Mrs.

W. R. Osler, Sarnia, Ont., during her stay here. She has also visited her brother, Lt. Col. W. G. A. Lambe in Vancouver.

Although born in Canada, Miss Lambe, after 30 years, now considers Australia home. When she flies there in about three weeks, the vegetables in her garden will be ready, according to a letter from her gardener.

Asia Will Leave Us Behind Warns Speaker On Thailand

"Get out and travel — see Southeast Asia — don't just take my word for it!"

These were the words of Mr. Hugh Christie, warden at Oakalla Prison Farm, speaking to the Provincial Council of Women at luncheon yesterday afternoon at the Empress Hotel. Mr. Christie travelled to Thailand for the United Nations recently, and passed on his observations to the meeting.

Stressing the need for world-wide understanding and brotherhood of nations, Mr. Christie told the women to do without a few luxuries, scrimp and save and then set out as individual ambassadors to visit Southeast Asia, to spread good will and to learn.

PLAY BEFORE WORK

There are 25 million people in a country the size of Texas — this is Thailand," said Mr. Christie. It is a rich country where the living is easy, there's no starvation, life is to be enjoyed and where the principal that work should never interfere with play is practiced. This life means a childlike form of development, which until fairly recently, did not change.

"Where there are no problems, there is no learning. A spoiled child will not advance and learn," said the speaker in describing Thailand. "However," he explained, "their social relationship is changing. Southeast Asia looks to us as a superior people — but this won't last long. They're catching up in social advances. We've got to work, and to make sure our teenagers work and use all their leisure time the Abbotsford council, before going in to luncheon at the Empress Hotel, where she introduced the speaker, Mr. Hugh Christie. — (Ryan Bros. photo.)

profitably or we'll be left behind, and they'll be showing us the way."

COME OF AGE

"We've only a few more years and then we must come of age. We must do what England has done for the Colonies. It's now our place as a mature nation to take up where England, now worn out in this field, has left off. For England can't protect us any more," he said with much force and conviction.

Localizing his remarks, he said that we are not doing enough — the women of this province don't know enough, and that we need more adult education, we've got to travel and see for ourselves.

He cited Canadians' amnesia at having a democracy, but he said that we should look at Thailand and see how a dictatorship works there.

"You would be staggered by the efficiency of this dictatorship," he said.

DICTATORSHIP WORKS

The Thesis, Mr. Christie explained, consider democracies as places where people don't recognize that some people are better than others, think better, are better educated and more capable of running things than others. A democracy, Mr. Christie went on to say, can be only as efficient as a dictatorship if we are all educated and can contribute.

600,000,000 PEOPLE

"One cannot leave Southeast Asia without a feeling of urgency," he said. "There are 600,000,000 Chinese, short of food and space. How long do you think they're going to watch us, 16,000,000 in Canada, sitting fat and full? Are you prepared to bring in several million of them and share all with them so that we all have just one meal a day? Of course you're not! Then we must try an alternative method."

"There they are, all taking military training, learning to use advanced weapons, they're fit, becoming well educated, and using American and Russian money. They're not going to sit there forever!" These were the words preliminary to

Council of Women Vital to Democracy

"If we are so busy with our own little lives that we neglect the great issues, our own little lives will abruptly cease." Quoting from a writer in Maclean's magazine, Mrs. R. T. Gilmore, president of the B.C. Provincial Council of Women at their first day of a two-day annual meeting, made her address, in which she asked, "Has Council of Women outlived its usefulness? Have we run out of a world to conquer?" She went on to say that on the contrary, now, even more than ever, they are a vital and necessary part of the whole structure of Canadian democracy. If, as is so often heard, they are over-organized, then, she said, the greater need for a Council to co-ordinate and express with one voice the results of deliberations on matters concerning us all.

Mrs. Gilmore also said that anything that makes for greater understanding between peoples anywhere should be fostered. At the afternoon session, Mrs. G. R. Pearkes was special guest at the luncheon. Other special guests included the speaker, Mr. Hugh Christie, Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mrs. Camille Mather, M.L.A. Hon. Burda Brown, M.L.A. Mrs. Lois Haggen, M.L.A. Mrs. Gordon Redgrave, Dr. Marian Sherman, Rev. Laura Butler, Mrs. G. W. Kissick, Mrs. H. H. Stein, Mrs. Lily Wilson.

Gives Talk on Korea

Miss Ruth Saunders, missionary and director of Nurses at the Union of Christ Hospital at Wonju, Korea, addressed members of Gordon United Church W.A. recently, stressing the need for spiritual as well as financial support of the missionary work.

She showed interesting slides of the very modern hospital, staffed by 18 doctors and 43 nurses. Miss Saunders indicated how the roof had been built in sections to allow its removal and replacement when a second floor is added to the structure.

Other slides included a stone church built entirely by members of the leper colony, views of the rice paddies and mountains, and everyday life in the heavily populated area. She also displayed articles of brass and teakwood, garments of silk, blankets, rubber shoes and Christmas cards made in Korea.

WA president, Mrs. L. R. Pasch thanked the speaker. Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Milne, Mrs. J. Henry, Mrs. E. Mullet, Mrs. E. Murchison and Mrs. R. Matthias. Miss Saunders also spoke at the 9.30 and 11 a.m. services at Gordon United Church last Sunday.

It was announced that the annual women's Day of Prayer will be held in Langford Baptist Church at 2.30 p.m., Friday, Feb. 17.

Port Alberni Couple Married 50 Years

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. —

"We've had many, many things to laugh about," Victor H. Sanders said as he and his wife summed up a half century of married life.

The couple, now living at 288 11th Avenue S., exchanged vows in Forget, Saskatchewan, on Feb. 20, 1911. In view of their backgrounds, it was one of the most "unlikely" marriages imaginable.

He came from the metropolis of London, England. Mrs. Sanders, born Delphine Georgiana LaFrange, came from a log cabin on a farm in North Dakota. His ancestors were English from way back and hers were French.

Their 50 years of marriage have not been without its quota of trials and tragedies but even the darker hours have been leavened with laughter. They raised four lively sons and two daughters, lived in three Canadian provinces and several States of the Union.

Mr. Sanders operated a real estate and insurance business in Vernon, Saskatchewan, and after coming to Port Alberni worked as a bookkeeper until his retirement two years ago.

He served with the R.A.F. in the First World War and with the Veterans Guard of Canada in the Second World War. Three of the Sanders sons each put in six years in the services.

Not many couples receive congratulations from a parent on a golden wedding. Mrs. Sanders expressed regret that her mother, 86 years old, did not feel able to come from Yakima, Wash., for the event. Two sons, Joseph V. and Francis A., with their families, will hold open house on Saturday, Feb. 18, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Sanders.

MR. AND MRS. SANDERS

Friends and relatives will be welcomed at 1007 Ninth Avenue North between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m., 7 and 9 p.m.

An anniversary mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. on Feb. 18 in Holy Family Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders are members of the Port Alberni Branch, Old Age Pensioners Association; he belongs to Branch 55 Canadian Legion and she is an Auxiliary member.

Party Proceeds $20

FULFORD, B.C. — Mr. A. H. Rogers was MC at the 500 card party sponsored by St. Mary's Guild, and held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Roddis recently. Mrs. A. E. Roddis, Sr. won the ladies' first prize, and Mrs. W. Y. Stewart came second, the consolation going to Mrs. L. B. D. Drummmond. Mr. F. Pyatt and Mrs. E. Strathern won the gentlemen's prizes. Mr. Pyatt, first. A special prize given for the average score went to Mrs. George Laundry.

The sum of $20 was collected and goes towards the Church funds. The president, Mrs. F. L. Jackson, thanked the gentlemen's prizes. Mr. Pyatt, first. A special prize given for the average score went to Mrs. George Laundry.

Secret Life of Alan Kemble

It Was Nothing, Really

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI)—They came at him from three directions, waving murderous-looking knives. But Alan Kemble was ready.

Cool, serene and confident in his judo ability, Kemble took on the three holdup men. The first thug lunged with his knife toward Kemble's stomach. Laughing inwardly, Kemble stepped to one side, grabbed the man by the lapels and, with a magnificently-executed judo hold, dumped him unceremoniously on the ground.

LAY DAZED

In a flash, Kemble was ready for the second man. Another lightning shift of position, another brilliant hold, and the second attacker lay dazed in the street.

The third man charged and was joined by his accomplices. In the melee, one of them slumped to the ground and another shouted: "You've stabbed the wrong man."

The holdup men carried their wounded companion to a car and they sped off, leaving Kemble master of the battlefield.

What a story for the 25-year-old hero to tell his co-workers at the Ford factory at Dagenham. And tell it he did.

There was only one thing wrong—it never happened.

As he was driving to work, Kemble imagined the entire adventure just like the hero of James Thurber's famous short story, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty."

But police believed Kemble and started a manhunt for his assailants.

TOO MUCH TV

The secret life of Alan Kemble brought him into magistrate's court where he confessed sadly yesterday that he had made up the story. Police said their investigation had cost them more than $560.

Kemble got a warning. "I guess I've been seeing too much television," he sighed.

'Appalled' at Loss

Queen Offers Sympathy To Victims of Cyclone

CHITTAGONG, Pakistan (Reuters)—The Queen paid a sympathetic visit Wednesday to the scene of the October cyclone that killed 14,000 persons in East Pakistan.

She and Prince Philip made a three-hour trip to this semi-tropical seaport on the Bay of Bengal after driving through a countryside where thousands lay dead four months ago after the worst cyclones in living memory.

"I and my people were appalled at the loss of life and havoc in the cruel cyclone," the Queen said in reply to a welcome address from Chittagong's 350,000 citizens.

The lush greenland bore few signs of the disaster and the royal couple were given an apparently carefree welcome by people buoyantly rebuilding their shattered community.

'Bear Space Lag' All U.S. Can Do

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A 360,000 pounds of thrust and top space official warned Wednesday it will take the United States another four or five years to match Russia's capability for lifting heavy weights into space.

Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, told the House space committee America will simply have to "sweat out" Russia's lead in big booster rockets.

Dryden said America's best rocket can now develop only it won't be until 1966 or 1967 until an advanced version of the 1,500,000 pound thrust Saturn rocket is ready. "In this sort of situation," Dryden said, "you can't buy time with money."

Quarters for Men Possible in Space

MOSCOW (UPI)—A leading Soviet scientist said yesterday "without the shadow of a doubt" it is possible to place in orbit around the earth space platforms to serve as quarters for Russian astronauts.

Astronaut Ari Sternfeld told Moscow Radio this was demonstrated by the carrier rocket that launched the Soviet space station toward Venus and still is orbiting the earth and the 7.1-ton sputnik launched Feb. 4.

"The most remarkable feature of the rocket now on its way to Venus is that it was not launched from the earth but from a heavy sputnik," Sternfeld said.

"Today we can say without the shadow of a doubt that it is possible to establish a cosmic launching pad close to earth," he continued.

"To create such an interplanetary starting platform, special materials and construction units would be needed which could be shot up to an orbit close to the earth by means of special cargo rockets."

"In order to set up an interplanetary launching pad, large quantities of cargo would have to be sent up to an orbit near the earth," Sternfeld said.

He said British scientists calculated that a rocket weighing 6.25 tons would be necessary to carry a payload into orbit. He pointed out that Russia launched a 7.1-ton sputnik Feb. 4.

"Nor should it be overlooked," he said, "that the last stage of the carrier rocket, which is several times heavier

Councillors Refight 1812 War

STONE CREEK, Ont. (CP)—Town council in this Hamilton suburb where a decisive battle in the War of 1812 was fought is up in arms against the version of the war taught in Ontario schools.

Council has asked the province to swap a history text by Edith Dayell of the University of British Columbia, because it says the United States won the battle of Stony Creek.

Council quoted a plaque on the historic battlefield which reads: "In the dead of night, the British advanced from Burlington Heights and surprising the enemy, put him in confusion."

"Miss Dayell must be an American," said deputy reeve Ada Bland.

OTTAWA (UPI)—On Jan. 15, 693,000 Canadians—10.8 per cent of the labor force, or one in nine—were out of work, a postwar high and the greatest percentage since the depression of the 30s.

The Bureau of Statistics said Wednesday the total surpassed the previous high of 637,000 in mid-March of 1958 when 10.6 per cent of the labor force was out of work. Peak unemployment is usually reached in March.

DEBATE REPEATED

In the Commons, Liberal spokesman Paul Martin, supported by the CCF, attempted to adjourn regular business for a special debate on the situation. Speaker Roland Michener rejected the motion and also turned down a CCF appeal.

Labor Minister Starr said the government was ready to do "everything possible" to meet the situation. Winter works alone were providing jobs for 200,000 persons.

DECEMBER TOTAL

At mid-December, when 528,000 people were unemployed, the rate was 8.2 per cent, the bureau said.

The 165,000 jump between December and January was the sharpest of four consecutive monthly increases this winter. And the January figure is 145,000 higher than a year earlier.

SEASONAL JUMP

Main causes of the big jump were seasonal factors—cold weather cutting back construction work, lay-offs of temporary workers after Christmas and a decline in lumbering.

About 63,000 were temporarily laid off Jan. 15. Of the rest 71 per cent had been

Finance Companies Jabbed For High Interest Rates

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt, head of the credit union movement in Quebec, took a sharp jab yesterday against interest rates charged by some finance companies.

He told the Senate that he spoke a few days ago to a man who borrowed $10,000 from a lender over a 10-year period and contracted to pay interest of $9,000 and a bonus of $1,000.

"If we are trying to improve and strengthen the economy of this country, I fail to see how it can be done when this type of transaction is allowed," the Quebec Liberal said.

Senator Vaillancourt, president of Federation des Caisses Populaires, spoke during debate on a private member's bill that would require finance companies and retailers giving credit to specify the finance charges and interest. The bill was introduced earlier in the Upper House by Senator David Croll (L.-Ontario) and is similar to one he proposed last session. He says some interest rates run as high as 30 to 50 per cent but appear modest to the public because they are expressed in monthly rather than annual terms.

He urged Canadians to save money to buy the things they need.

Let's Run Through That Again

TOKYO (AP)—Members of the fire department in the village of Kuchi leaped aboard their three-wheeled fire engine after the alarm sounded yesterday.

At the fire the firemen found they had forgotten their hose.

The crew started back to the station to get the hose but overturned en route. Three farmers by the side of the road were injured. The engine was wrecked. Meanwhile two farm houses were destroyed.

Robbery Admitted Threats Denied

Pleading guilty in city police court yesterday to robbery with violence or threats of violence, two men were remanded to today to hear evidence from the victim.

Orin Coas, 27, and John G. Day, 19, both of no fixed address, were charged with robbing William Campbell, 34, of 174 Joseph, of $5 after forcing him out of his car on Johnson Street at 1:20 a.m. yesterday. Police said one of the two stated, "Don't bother for police... I have a gun."

Both denied in court using threats of violence. Coas said: "We didn't touch or handle the man at all."

After pleading guilty earlier to possession of stolen property Harold Pearsall, 1224 Pembroke, was sentenced to one month in jail. Property involved included chain and skill saws, sanders, plumbing fixtures and valves, taken from a structure at Lansdowne and Foul Bay Road.

Sentence of nine months definite and three indefinite at the young offenders' unit at Oakalla jail was given to Larry Preston in city court. He had admitted breaking and entering Mooney and Sons, 937 View.

In Colwood court Donald Jackson, HMCS Margaree, was fined $150 and had his licence suspended for three months on an impaired driving charge.

Total Eclipse Shades Europe

LONDON (UPI)—The moon blotted out the sun yesterday in a total Ash Wednesday eclipse that cast a thousand-mile band of darkness over Europe from southern Spain to Soviet Crimea.

U.S. Skimps On Food Gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Harke said, with considerable startled newsmen invited to a luncheon by Sen. Vance Harke were served a teaspoon of unsalted rice covered by a pasty gravy of lard, flour and water and washed down with a half glass of skimmed milk.

The Indiana Democrat offered the skimpy meal to dramatize the inadequate diet of needy families who depend on U.S. government surplus food handouts.

"I hope this will open some people's eyes," Harke said. "The right thing to do for the people is something better than what you see on this plate," he said. "You can't build healthy bodies, or healthy minds, on food like this."

He said the luncheon servings were equal to one meal from the surplus food allotments given monthly to needy families across the U.S.

"A resentment is building up" among the unemployed, phenomenon from mountain tops and airplanes. Millions of Europeans gaped in awe through smoked glasses while other millions watched the eclipse over a Europeanwide television hookup at their breakfast table.

Russia announced it launched "a series of geophysical rockets" equipped to make special studies of the eclipse. The official Tass news agency said the rockets contained cameras that took photographs of the eclipse and then returned the pictures to earth by parachute.

The total eclipse took place over a belt some 125 miles wide comprising southern Spain, the Riviera, the southern Alps, the Adriatic Sea, Yugoslavia and Soviet Crimea.

In other areas of the continent the eclipse was partial.

Londoners were unable to see it because of heavy clouds but scientists said 83 per cent of the sun's surface was blotted out over the British capital.

A British Broadcasting Corporation television announcer, describing the eclipse for just-awakened morning viewers, blurted out:

"What a sight this is! That is a scene that, if we lived two or three thousand years ago, would have made us set about a sacrifice—a goat, perhaps, or one of your younger children."

"All we ask you to do today is to sacrifice an extra slice of toast."

Garden Notes

Time for Surgery

By M. V. CHERNUT, FRHS

With the pious hope that the coming weekend will be dry, I am going to try my hand today at explaining something about the pruning of fruit trees.

It isn't too easy to make this job clear and understandable without diagrams and pictures and, to those readers who live close in and around Victoria, I would suggest that you throw away these notes and see the job done properly at the pruning demonstrations arranged by the Victoria Horticultural Society. The first of these will be held next Saturday at 2 p.m. at 760 Goldstream, with further demonstrations Feb. 22 at 1541 Despard and Feb. 25 at 955 Cloverdale. Alan Little of the Dominion Experimental Farm will do the pruning and provide the explanations, and it is not necessary to be a member of the horticultural society in order to attend—the general public is welcome.

every main branch has extended itself this past year—you can tell this new, recent growth by the different color of the bark. These main branch tips are called "leaders," and the future well-being of your tree will depend on how you treat them.

The first and most important job in pruning is to shorten these leaders, cutting off a portion of new extension growth. This is done for two reasons: first, to strengthen the branch, for you cut away the thin, whippy tip leaving only the stout stuff. Second, cutting off the tip will induce the branch to sprout a lot of side shoots, just like nipping the tip off a geranium plant will cause it to branch out. In a fruit tree, a proportion of these side shoots will be fruit-bearing twigs called "spurs."

so in selecting it, make sure it is pointing in the direction you wish the branch to grow.

In pruning your tree, you could get by in a pinch simply by shortening these leaders and letting it go at that. However, it is a good idea to do something about the young twigs or side shoots growing out along the length of the main branch. These are called "laterals" and the objects in cutting these back are to let in plenty of light and air and to help persuade fruit buds to form.

These laterals should be cut back to two buds on weak growth and about five on thicker, stouter shoots. Keep an eye open as you work for any dead, diseased or injured wood and take this out completely.

On some hardpruned trees, especially on old trees which have been violently beheaded, you'll find a whole bunch of thin little shoots all growing straight up. These are called "water sprouts," and as they are perfectly useless, they should be cut off flush with the parent branch.

Use a good pair of secateurs and a small but very sharp saw for your pruning and keep them well oiled. Better wear your oldest clothes on the job, for pruning can be a mighty dirty business.

How far back do you cut these leaders? It depends on the thickness and strength of the branch tip—the weaker and thinner the growth, the more of it you cut off. A thin, whippy tip is cut away back, taking off about two-thirds of the new extension growth. With a strong leader, take off about one-third. The cut is always made on the slant, immediately above a well-placed growth bud. This bud will grow out this summer, becoming the new leader or branch tip.

For those folks who can't make it to these most valuable pruning sessions, I'll do my best to give you a simplified explanation with just plain words.

Let's take a long look at your tree first. You'll notice that the tip of

After Eichmann Case

New Dragnet Out for Nazis

By JACK de LORRA

MUNICH (TNS) — Kurt Chmielewski shivers in a court dock in Ansbach and faces charges that he murdered 297 concentration camp prisoners by freezing and torturing them to death 20 years ago.

West Germany Spurred By Polish Accusations

Chmielewski, a 57-year-old former sculptor who commanded the Gusen Camp One in Mauthausen, Austria, is the first of an estimated 1,000 concentration camp personnel expected to stand trial in Germany this year.

The central office has also announced it is tracing the history of a special Nazi force called the "action commandos" who specialized in mass killings in East Europe and Russia.

The arrest of Adolf Eichmann and subsequent investigation turned up many old stones and the West German authorities are jumping on the things found under these rocks.

The West German announcements came in response to a recent charge by Poland in the United Nations subdivision on prevention of discrimination that anti-Semitic acts in West Germany were the result of an underlying coziness with former Nazi feelings.

At Gusen Camp One prisoners were herded into outdoor cement basins and sprayed with freezing water until they died of exposure. Those who tried to crawl out of the basins were shot.

Chmielewski is also accused of killing some prisoners by giving them alternately freezing and scalding showers, or by hanging them from trees by their wrists until they starved.

On trial with Chmielewski is Walter Jung, a Gusen guard charged with one murder.

The long arm of the central office has also recently caught up with Johannes Pradel, a former SS officer charged with inventing and practising a method of gassing Jews in converted buses. Also charged are three men accused of maintaining these buses.

Brando Sought To Portray Great Betrayer

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — George Stevens Jr. gave me the latest news of "The Greatest Story Ever Told," which his father is directing and producing. "Now that Marlon Brando is back in town, he will be asked to play Judas. We want a big star for every role." As you know, Elizabeth Taylor plays Mary Magdalene, Spencer Tracy is Pontius Pilate, John Wayne the Roman Centurion, and Sidney Poitier is Simon. . . . Filming will begin in the early summer—"using the grandeur and drama of the landscapes in the southwest."

Peter Ustinov has written a new play—about an 80-year-old former Olympic marathon runner. Peter, of course, will be starred.

Frank Sinatra won't have time to visit Washington, D.C., for a while. He's now at the Sands of Vegas for a long stretch and will follow this up with a stand at the Fontainebleu in Miami.

It's hard to believe that Danny Kaye will be 50 within two years. He is in London recently discussing the role of "Fagin" in the movie version of "Oliver," to be made by an English company. Strange in the Dickens book, "Oliver Twist," Fagin is the most unsavory of characters. But in the play as put on in London you actually—almost—like him!

Linda Christian is in the chips again. She has rented the home she inherited from Tyrone Power in Beverly Hills to Joni James and husband Tony Acquavita.

Sir Alec Guinness should be Oscar-nominated for his fantastic performance in "Tomb of the Unknown Soldier." I caught the picture in Beverly Hills, and Sir Alec, with his red hair and brush mustache was superb and completely unlike anything he has done before.

Elizabeth Seal and Shirley MacLaine were big hits in the stage version of "Pajama Game." They still have something in common—Elizabeth stars on stage in "Irma la Douce" and Shirley will star in the movie version. I hope Miss Seal will accept one of the many film offers coming her part way.

Marilyn Maxwell isn't letting the romantic grass grow under her well-heeled feet. After causing a column ripple with her dates with Rock Hudson, Marilyn is now going places with Jeff Chandler. But both lads will look long and carefully before taking the marriage leap again. P.S.—So will Marilyn.

The Ingrid Bergman-Yves Montand-Tony Perkins starrer, "Goodbye Again," has a duplicate of the famed Maxim's restaurant in Paris. Director Anatole Litvak wanted complete authenticity, and his call sheet for the scene listed "30 couples, evening clothes, and 12 waiters, rude."

Rock Hudson drives an expensive car in "Come September." He wanted to buy a similar, convertible type, and went to the dealer. "Does the top work automatically?" he asked. "Why should it?" said the salesman. "The chauffeur does that!"

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Fleisch

I've read many murder mysteries in my life, but I cannot remember anything as gripping and exciting as "Heaven Knows Who" by Christianna Brand (Scribner).

"Heaven Knows Who" deals with a true murder case—the case of Jessie M'Lachlan of Glasgow, who was tried and convicted for the murder of her friend, Jess M'Pherson, on the night of July 4, 1962. The case was a tremendous sensation at the time and Mrs. Brand's book attempts to prove that Jessie M'Lachlan was innocent. If so, her case was one of the greatest miscarriages of justice in the history of mankind.

Wait for Justice

In the end you're left with breathtaking suspense, waiting for justice to be done and for poor Jessie M'Lachlan to be vindicated and freed.

But no. This isn't fiction where everything gets neatly resolved at the end and the reader always gets his expected emotional satisfaction. This is reality—brutal, stupid, inexorable, shattering, unjust. The man who almost certainly committed the murder goes scot-free and poor Jessie, the innocent victim of circumstances, spends 15 years in prison and the rest of her life as a convicted murderer.

What actually happened July 4, 1962, heaven only knows, as Mrs. Brand says in her title. But to the extent anyone can know from the evidence, Jess M'Pherson was killed by 87-year-old James Fleming and not by Jessie M'Lachlan.

James Fleming was arrested a few days after the murder, but later was set free and never brought to trial. Jessie M'Lachlan, who was a close friend of the victim, did visit her during the crucial night.

She Knew Who

Long before that, James Fleming, who almost certainly hacked Jess M'Pherson to pieces with a meat cleaver, died peacefully of old age.

B.C. Gags Educators On Chant

Silence Ordered — Teachers

A Greater Victoria secondary school principal last night charged a department of education order is "stifling" informed debate on the Chant report on education.

B. C. Gillie, principal of S. J. Willis Junior High School, told the Provincial Council of Women: "I have no hesitation in saying that even if I agreed with everything in the Chant report, which I don't, I would oppose it right down the line as it is being handled now."

SHARED PLATFORM

He shared the speaker's platform with Dean Neville Scarfe of the UBC college of education, who charged that "the whole system of education in B.C. is directed from above, not animated from below, in the classroom where it's happening."

In a scathing attack on the royal commission, Dean Scarfe said its voluminous report, "translated into harsh terms, simply means let us keep our horse and buggy, cars go too fast."

DIDN'T AGREE

Mr. Gillie said while he didn't agree with all the views expressed, Dean Scarfe was "about the only voice in education in this province who has so far spoken out and endeavored to interpret the Chant report, whether for better or worse."

The school principal added: "We have heard nothing from the district superintendents or from the department of education, or from our universities, in general. They have been told—at least in the case of the department of education, which employs district superintendents—not to speak out..."

PLAY POLITICS

Mr. Gillie said he was aware that he was inviting criticism from some quarters for "playing politics" while a teacher.

He added: "If politics is the reason these officials were told not to speak, thus effectively stifling the most informed source of public information on the subject of education, then I believe something must be radically wrong with our political institutions."

DOING NO GOOD

Meanwhile, Mr. Gillie added, the resulting lack of public information is "doing no good to the Chant report and is doing a great disservice to the cause of education."

Mr. Gillie described the report as "essentially a document that looks back, placing the greatest emphasis on procedures, which in the opinion of the commissioners have been tried and tested and judged successful, but under conditions that no longer exist."

GLOSSING OVER

He cited the way the report "glossed over" use of television as a teaching medium. Dean Scarfe told the audience in the Empress Hotel "all of us are in favor of some things in the Chant report."

He added: "I would like to see excellence in all things, not just the Three R's, at all levels in our schools. But I don't know if we'll ever get what the commissioners want by

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy last night warned Russia to keep hands off the Congo.

He said he was "seriously concerned" about the threat of what appears to be unilateral intervention in Congolese affairs.

The president told a news conference that only the presence of the United Nations in the Congo could keep peace in Africa.

He said the United States had supported and will continue to support the United Nations presence in the country, then noted Russian pledges to aid leftist leader Antoine Gizenga.

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C.'s hush-hush series of unemployment conferences of government, industry, labor, church and education leaders has endorsed proposals for "cheaper" money for municipal urban development projects.

The conference at its latest meeting supported the call of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities for a huge program of necessary capital works financed by loans at lower interest rates to boost employment.

It proposed a special federal municipal loan fund at lower interest, exempting municipal bond interest from income tax.

PARALYSIS SOVIET GOAL I WON'T QUIT, SAYS DAG

Melee Erupts At UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Dag Hammarskjöld charged late Wednesday that the Soviet Union is trying to paralyze the United Nations by attacks on him.

The UN secretary-general struck back at Russia at a hectic meeting of the UN Security Council which earlier saw the wildest melee in UN history when a group of Negroes roared into the council chamber protesting the slaying of Patrice Lumumba in the Congo.

REVOLTING CRIME

Hammarskjöld, in his hard-hitting 4,400-word speech, began by describing the slaying of Lumumba, deposed Congolese premier, as a "revolting crime."

Rejecting Soviet demands that he resign or be dismissed, Hammarskjöld declared that Russia is seeking not only to get rid of him but to destroy the post of secretary-general and replace it with a "triumvirate which could not function..."

OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES

Hammarskjöld said that in other circumstances he would consider the withdrawal of confidence of one of the security council permanent members—Russia, the U.S., Britain, France and Nationalist China—as a reason to resign.

But "in this case the Soviet Union, while refusing its confidence to the secretary-general, has at the same time taken a stand which makes it absolutely clear that, were the present secretary-general to resign, no new secretary-general could be appointed, and the world would have to bow to the wish of the Soviet Union to have this organization, on its executive side, run by a triumvirate which could not function and which most definitely would not provide the instrument for all the uncommitted countries of which they are in need."

UP TO NEUTRALS

Hammarskjöld said, however, he would resign if it were the wish of the uncommitted nations that he do so in their interest and in that of the UN. He added:

"The decision is thus in the hands of all those for whom the Soviet Union pretends to speak, but for whom I do not believe that it does speak," said Hammarskjöld.

DEMOCRACY GUARDIAN

Hammarskjöld traced the history of the UN Congo operation and protested Russia's charge that he was implicated in Lumumba's death.

At late as Nov 7 Lumumba—the murder house arrest after being deposed—had described the UN as the "guardian of democracy" and expressed his confidence in Hammarskjöld. Lumumba later escaped house arrest, starting a chain of events that led to his death.

VILE BETRAYAL

Earlier, Valerian Zorin of Russia had reiterated Moscow's charges that Hammarskjöld and the UN Congo staff were guilty of "vile betrayal" of Lumumba as tools of Belgian and other "colonialists."

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson's speech was a re-

Mobs attacked Belgian diplomats in Warsaw, set fire to the Belgian embassy in Cairo, and fought a pitched battle at a United Nations Security Council session in New York Wednesday in a fresh wave of violent protests over the slaying of Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba.

Shouting students also led an assault on the American embassy in Cairo, hurling stones and plastering portraits of Lumumba over the walls.

Demonstrations were staged in Colombo, Paris, Lyons, London, Washington, Montreal, Dublin, Rome, Prague, Moscow, Accra, Casablanca, Tehran, Khartoum, Melbourne and other cities.

At the United Nations, American Negro demonstrators burst into the security council chamber and staged the wildest melee in its history. More than 25 persons, including UN guards and demonstrators were treated for injuries.

The worldwide demonstrations are aimed at Belgium as former ruler of the Congo, UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and occasionally at the United States and Britain for supporting Hammarskjöld in the face of Soviet demands he resign.

Warsaw students grappled with diplomats in the Belgian embassy and splattered purple ink while ransacking offices for documents to throw into a street bonfire.

The Belgian ambassador in Cairo took refuge with the Canadian ambassador as thick columns of smoke poured from his embassy's shattered windows.

Skaters Among 73 Who Die in Crash

(CP from AP-Reuters)
BRUSSELS—The crash of a Boeing 707 jet yesterday killed 73 persons including 18 young American figure skating stars. (See sports pages.)

The Sabena airlines plane spun out of control in circling for a landing in a sunlit farmyard, killing a farmer in addition 61 passengers and 11 crew members. The wreckage burned.

Among the dead was a 39-year-old tobacco farmer from Vanasse, Ont., Victor Maes. A native of Belgium but a naturalized Canadian citizen, he was on his way to attend his mother's funeral.

Also aboard was skating instructor Daniel Ryan, who taught at the Minto Skating Club in Ottawa in 1955 and 1956. Ryan has lived in Indianapolis in recent years.

Among the 49 Americans who perished were Mrs. Maribel Vinson Owen, 48, of Winchester, Mass., and two daughters, Mrs. Owen, nine times U.S. figure skating champion, was coach for the two girls, both members of a U.S. team heading to Prague, Czechoslovakia, for the world figure skating championship due to open Feb. 22.

Flames fed by bursting fuel tanks quickly engulfed the bulk of the $5,000,000 plane.

FIREMEN BEAT FLAMES
The flames frustrated rescue efforts of firemen who were speeding to help even while the plane was still erratically aloft, with engines sounding oddly, in the final stage of a flight from New York.

"It felt like a bomb," the airport tower commander said. Heat was so intense that part of the plane's metal skin melted like butter. Clothing was burned from passengers in the forward cabin and authorities said the identification of many will be difficult.

Debris was scattered for several hundred yards.

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich would be "heartily in favor" of a royal commission investigation of the distribution of education costs, he said yesterday.

The reeve earlier accused the provincial government of intentionally or otherwise "trying to sneak one in" on municipal property-owners by providing for a new basis of assessment next year—a basis which, he said, will increase greatly the municipalities' share of school costs unless a new cost-sharing formula is introduced.

Especially in view of this situation, he said yesterday, "I think education costs should be thoroughly investigated. Things have changed so much in recent years: the whole system of provincial grants to municipalities, the relations between the province and the municipalities has changed, and the relations between the federal and provincial governments has changed. I would be heartily in favor of a royal commission."

Bigger Shop Plaza Urged in Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Commercial Street merchants will be canvassed for support for enlargement this year of Nanaimo's shopping plaza to be held June 22, 23 and 24.

Ald. Haig Burns, who chairs the six-man committee in charge of arrangements, said it is proposed to add the block extending from Wharf and Skinner Streets north to Bastion.

Last year only the block from Terminal Avenue to Wharf was closed to traffic.

The street will be closed to vehicles, if merchants approve, for three full shopping days.

After reading a report by works supervisor Perry Ross, Coun. Tony Staples said "He really means it's leaking, and it is not pleasant stuff."

Damage to the line extends for more than 600 feet. Logs and boats are blamed but some sections, said Reeve Donald Morton, are 30 years old.

Cost of repairs is estimated at more than $4,000.

South Pacific Their Target

By CHARLES THOMPSON

MILL BAY—Two young bachelors tacked out of this peaceful cove aboard a 32-foot ketch yesterday on the first leg of a journey they look forward to with gusto.

For one, 26-year-old Derek Naylor, it is the starting point of a life-long plan to see the South Pacific in his own sail boat.

To the other, veteran English sailor Peter Lawson, it is possibly the last adventurous journey for a man who aims to settle down at journey's end.

"We're going to make it, you can bet your boots on that," said Naylor, a Cobble Hill chicken farmer who built the ketch "Bachelor's Delight" for $4,000.

Yesterday marked the start of their "shakedown" cruise and final departure all rolled into one. They sailed out under a sunny sky and hoping for a

Cowichan Complaint

Overflowing Septic Tanks 'Health Menace' to School

NORTH COWICHAN—Health Minister Eric Martin has been asked to step in and stop construction of a junior high school until a "health menace" caused by overflowing septic tanks is controlled.

The request has been made by North Cowichan resident C. P. Daykin on behalf of "persons living in an area of School District 65."

In a letter to the health minister Mr. Daykin has asked "that you take steps to intervene in the matter of location of a new junior high school to be built in an area adjacent to that known as the Wall subdivision."

"This area was inundated by flood waters from the Cowichan River and Somenos Creek on Jan. 15."

The letter is to be read before the District 65 school board tonight with a petition signed by more than 25 persons.

"At the time of flooding," wrote Mr. Daykin, "all households in the area had to be evacuated and homeowners were advised of a health menace existing because septic tanks had overflowed and the flooding was backing up sewage from the City of Duncan disposal system located between the subdivision and the Cowichan River."

Reeve Donald Morton said the letter is filled with inaccuracies. It was read at the council meeting yesterday and tabled.

After the flooding, Cowichan School Board's seven members voted down two women trustees and approved the site west of Alexander School and just northeast of Duncan.

Contract for the $252,227 school for 250 students has already been awarded.

Flood waters did not extend to the new site but reached nearby Alexander School several hundred feet away. The elementary school's playing fields were flooded for days.

New Cans, Signs, Enforcement

Fight Litter Four Ways
City Committee Urges

A four-pronged attack on litterers is in prospect in downtown Victoria.

Public works committee yesterday decided:

- To recommend to city council that it approve purchase of 10 litter cans of a new design, to be installed on Douglas at a cost of up to $1,000. (See below.) Design of the new cans is such that litter won't easily blow out of them, and bulky parcels of garbage—which, officials said, some people bring to town with them in the morning—can't readily be deposited.
- To install signs on or near litter cans warning the public that dropping litter on the street is an offence punishable by fine. Wording will be decided later.
- To call if necessary for stricter enforcement of anti-litter law.
- To investigate the possibility of passing a bylaw prohibiting pamphlets and handbills from being placed on or in parked cars—It's certainly a nuisance to drivers," said low.

city engineer James Garnett, "and a litter nuisance too."

The committee decided not to recommend nightly flushing of downtown streets when Mr. Garnett reported that the cost, for the central business district alone, would be $200 or more a day.

That cost is just prohibitive," said Ald. Geoffrey Edge.

Squire Accuses Big Firm

Woodworkers
'Intimidated'

Officials of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. were accused of "outright intimidation" yesterday during a speech in which John Squire (CCF—Alberni) called for a labor department investigation of the company.

The member, an official of the International Woodworkers of America, said the company had laid off men yet was loading those still on the job with overtime.

"In some cases it has gone past the point of requiring men to work overtime to the point where it is outright intimidation," said Mr. Squire. "Workers once were called into management's office and advised that they must work overtime on threat of dismissal."

The CCF said the reason behind this move was to cut the company's contribution to wards medical coverage. Even workers who wanted to keep up their MSA payments were told they could not do so.

"This is the story of the ruckus in Port Alberni at the present time," said Mr. Squire. "During the present dispute in Port Alberni, the union members and the public have been treated to the usual propaganda designed to depict officers as union bosses in an attempt to separate officers from the members."

He said management had told crews that by refusing to work overtime they were contravening the statutes of B.C. "They say 'You have to do this. Mr. Bennett has passed Bill 43,'" he said.

"That's the serfdom law," said Gordon Dowling (CCF—Burnaby).

Welfare Minister Wesley Black was taken to task in the legislature yesterday for criticizing the CCF for distributing pamphlets publicizing services available from the provincial welfare department.

Mr. Barrett said that was strange because a Victoria welfare officer had thought the

There's no point in basement fallout shelters, John Squire (CCF—Alberni) told the legislature yesterday.

"I have a 12-year-old son sitting in the gallery today and I'm not showing myself to be so stupid by telling him humanity's only escape is to build a bomb shelter in the southeast corner of our basement," he said.

"Are you going to run to your neighbor's when the bombs start falling?" called Don Smith (SC—Victoria).

Mr. Squire said he had no desire to be the only survivor in the block.

"What's the good of surviving when there are no neighbors, no birds, no trees?" asked the CCFer. "What is life made of?"

New type of litter-bin which may appear soon on Douglas is inspected at city hall by Mrs. Beryl Watson. Public works committee yesterday recommended buying 10 at installed cost of up to $1,000. "We must be certain that we maintain adequate service," he said. "What I propose is that the B.C. government should study the possibility of

Nanaimo Library Start
Sees Dream Come True

NANAIMO — The sod for Nanaimo's new library will be turned Thursday afternoon to make reality out of a years-long series of meetings, discussions and struggles for establishment of a modern library here.

Contract for the new building was awarded to Don Robinson Construction at a special meeting between city council and the Nanaimo Library Society. The bid, lowest of nine, was for $48,672.

Chairman George Darling of the Vancouver Island regional library said yesterday although library construction will begin immediately $20,000 will still be needed for the kind of facilities the board wants.

Mr. Darling said "we still need an assembly hall, which is not provided for. We have an assembly hall in the old library. As soon as we raise the extra $20,000, an assembly hall can be added."

A sod turning ceremony will be performed tomorrow at the site of the new library, with Nanaimo's Mayor Pete Maffeo as master of ceremonies. The sod will be turned by Arthur Lionel, president of the Nanaimo Building Society. The library is expected to be finished April 30th.

COURTENAY — School operating budget of $1,415,000 for 1961 has received government approval. District 71 trustees have been advised. Net effect is to increase cash requirements $70,000 over 1960. The province will provide two-thirds of this, and the municipalities of Courtenay, Comox and Cumberland the rest.

Outcome in terms of municipal tax rates will not be known until the council receives final property assessment figures for the year from the provincial assessor.

Budget increases covered additional debt services, annual salary increments to teachers, and a 1.5 per cent arbitration award granted teachers earlier this year. Increasing school enrollment will add eight new teachers to the staff next September. An operating surplus from 1960 reduces the total cash requirement for this year to $1,349,000.

NANAIMO — The city's chamber of commerce has selected chairman for its active committees in the coming year.

E. Bradshaw will head the important trade and industry bureau. Mrs. G. L. Hall will head the civic affairs bureau. A. E. Fletcher is chairman of the business committee. D. E. Jones, tourist development; H. G. Warner, building committee; V. C. Jones, finance; and R. W. Gardiner, membership.

COMOX — Village council has approved a house numbering system for the Comox area.

A grid system allowing for pin-pointing any address in the area within 20 feet was selected from three alternatives.

CLEANOUT CLUE: Residents of a city boarding house discovered to their dismay the other day that their cupboards had been looted of valuables to the extent of several hundred dollars.

DUNCAN — Lieut.-Col. Gilbert Lewis Parker, a soldier and former Duncan teacher, was buried Tuesday following an impressive funeral service at St. Philip's Anglican Church in Vancouver.

More than 200 boys from Athlone School, where he was a senior master, about 50 "old boys" and scores of former comrades at arms, friends and admirers attended the service.

The colonel died last week at the age of 63.

He served in two world wars and was a co-founder of the Duncan Grammar School in 1926 where he served until 1939 when he left to command the Second Battalion, Canadian Scottish Regiment, and went overseas with the First Battalion which he later commanded in England.

Following the Second World War he taught at Duncan before joining Athlone in 1948.

Council decided to ask police to see that the night number is not left out of the next book.

But it appeared there was still a little ill-feeling among the government members yesterday.

PARKSVILLE — Norman Trim was reappointed vicar's warden at the annual meeting of St. Anne's Church and Edward Foster was elected people's warden.

Members of the church committee for 1961 are C. H. Ramsden, Dudley Wickett, H. P. Clarke, John Leakey, T. A. Hocking and Gerry Mayfield. T. C. Tryon and Mr. Trim were elected as lay delegates to the diocesan synod.

Mrs. H. P. Clarke and Mrs. F. J. Gibson were elected to the missionary committee while Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. Norman Trim were named representatives to the rural-decanal conference.

A year of growth and development in the parish was outlined by Rev. John Stainer in his annual address and he expressed appreciation to members of St. Anne's guild and the women's auxiliary for assistance during the year.

NANAIMO — Vancouver Island high school students will be among nearly 300 delegates at the 14th annual high school conference to be held at University of British Columbia on Feb. 24 and 25.

Dean E. D. MacPhee will welcome the delegates who will attend a two-day program of typical lectures, discussion and campus tours ending with banquet and dance.

NANAIMO — The British Columbia government has renewed for two years a $15,000 subsidy to the operator of the Texada Island ferry to Powell River.

An order-in-council sets out the payment in quarterly installments to H. C. R. Davis of Nanaimo, who has received the same subsidy each year since 1957. The order also renews Mr. Davis' ferry charter.

"We are giving ourselves a month to think it over—we don't want this to be a spur of the moment decision."

Mr. Edgington added an open invitation will go out to the public to attend the meeting, slated for March 14, and only if there is some concerted drive by the public is there a chance the association will not dissolve.

Last week Mayor Pete Maffeo replied to requests from the exhibition association by saying he would not "send good money after bad money."

This week the recreation commission made a point of going on record as refusing to become involved in the exhibition's responsibility for meeting debt service payments.

President Edgington replied "we don't have to go hat in hand to anybody anymore."

B.C. Gags Educators On Chant

Silence
Ordered
---Teacher

By IAN STREET

A Greater Victoria secondary school principal last night charged a department of education order is "stifling" informed debate on the Chant report on education.

B. C. Gillie, principal of S. J. Willis Junior High School, told the Provincial Council of Women: "I have no hesitation in saying that even if I agreed with everything in the Chant report, which I don't, I would oppose it right down the line as it is being handled now."

SHARED PLATFORM

He shared the speaker's platform with Dean Neville Scarfe of the UBC college of education, who charged that "the whole system of education in B.C. is directed from above, not animated from below, in the classroom where it's happening."

In a scathing attack on the royal commission, Dean Scarfe said its voluminous report, "translated into harsh terms, simply means let us keep our horse and buggy, cars go too fast."

DIDN'T AGREE

Mr. Gillie said while he didn't agree with all the views expressed, Dean Scarfe was "about the only voice in education in this province who has so far spoken out and endeavored to interpret the Chant report, whether for better or worse."

The school principal added: "We have heard nothing from the district superintendents or from the department of education, or from our universities, in general. They have been told—at least in the case of the department of education, which employs district superintendents—not to speak out."

PLAY POLITICS

Mr. Gillie said he was aware that he was inviting criticism from some quarters for "playing politics" while a teacher. He added: "It politics is the reason these officials were told not to speak, thus effectively stifling the most informed source of public information on the subject of education, then I believe something must be radically wrong with our political institutions."

DOING NO GOOD

Meanwhile, Mr. Gillie added, the resulting lack of public information is "doing no good to the Chant report and is doing a great disservice to the cause of education."

Mr. Gillie described the report as "essentially a document that looks back, placing the greatest emphasis on procedures which in the opinion of the commissioners have been tried and tested and judged successful, but under conditions that no longer exist."

GLOUSED OVER

He cited the way the report "gloused over" use of television as a teaching medium. Dean Scarfe told the audience in the Empress Hotel "all of us are in favor of something in the Chant report."

He added: "I would like to see excellence in all things, not just the Three R's, at all levels in our schools. But I doubt if we'll ever get what the commissioners want by Continued on Page 2

Hands Off Congo

—Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy last night warned Russia to keep hands off the Congo. He said he was "seriously concerned" about the threat of what appears to be unilateral intervention in Congolese affairs.

The president told a news conference that only the presence of the United Nations in the Congo could keep peace in Africa.

He said the United States had supported and will continue to support the United Nations presence in the country, then noted Russian pledges to aid leftist leader Antoine Gizenga, the Communists' choice as the successor to Patrice Lumumba.

Hindus believe anyone bathing in Kurukshetra pond during an eclipse gets the benefit of a thousand extra blessings.

Skaters Among 73 Who Die in Crash

(CP from AP-Reuters)
BRUSSELS—The crash of a Boeing 707 jet yesterday killed 73 persons including 17 young American figure skating stars. (See sports pages.)

The Sabena airlines plane spun out of control in circling for a landing in a sunlit farmyard, killing a farmer in addition to 61 passengers and 11 crew members. The wreckage burned.

Among the dead was a 39-year-old tobacco farmer from Vanves, Ont., Victor Maes. A native of Belgium but a naturalized Canadian citizen, he was on his way to attend his mother's funeral.

Also aboard was skating instructor Daniel Ryan, who taught at the Minto Skating Club in Ottawa in 1953 and 1956. Ryan has lived in Indianapolis in recent years.

Among the 49 Americans who perished were Mrs. Maribel Vinson Owen, 48, of Winchester, Mass., and two daughters, Mrs. Owen, nine times U.S. figure skating champion, was coach for the two girls, both members of a U.S. team heading to Prague, Czechoslovakia, for the world figure skating championship due to open Feb. 22.

Flames fed by bursting fuel tanks quickly engulfed the bulk of the $3,000,000 plane.

The flames frustrated rescue efforts of firemen who were speeding to help even while the plane was still erratically aloft, with engines sounding oddly, in the final stage of a flight from New York.

LIKE A BOMB
"It fell like a bomb," the airport tower commander said. Heat was so intense that part of the plane's metal skin melted like butter. Clothing was burned from passengers in the forward cabin and authorities said the identification of many will be difficult.

Debris was scattered for several hundred yards.

Worldwide Riots Protest Slaying

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Mobs attacked Belgian diplomats in Warsaw, set fire to the Belgian embassy in Cairo, and fought a pitched battle at a United Nations Security Council session in New York Wednesday in a fresh wave of violent protests over the slaying of Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba.

Shouting students also led an assault on the American embassy in Cairo, hurling stones and plastering portraits of Lumumba over the walls. Demonstrations were staged in Colombo, Paris, Lyons, London, Washington, Montreal, Dublin, Rome, Prague, Moscow, Accra, Casablanca, Tehran, Khartoum, Melbourne and other cities.

At the United Nations, American Negro demonstrators burst into the security council chamber and staged the wildest melee in its history. More than 25 persons, including UN guards and demonstrators were treated for injuries.

The worldwide demonstrations are aimed at Belgium as former ruler of The Congo, UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld and occasionally at the United States and Britain for supporting Hammarskjöld in the face of Soviet demands he resign.

Warsaw students grappled with diplomats in the Belgian embassy and splattered purple ink while ransacking offices for documents to throw into a street bonfire.

The Belgian ambassador in Cairo took refuge with the Canadian ambassador as thick columns of smoke poured from his embassy's shattered windows.

Hamarskjöld said, however, he would resign if it were the wish of the uncommitted nations that he do so in their interest and in that of the UN. He added:

"The decision is thus in the hands of all those for whom the Soviet Union pretends to speak, but for whom I do not believe that it does speak," said Hammarskjöld.

DEMOCRACY GUARDIAN
Hammarskjöld traced the history of the UN Congo operation and protested Russia's charge that he was implicated in Lumumba's death.

As late as Nov. 7 Lumumba then under house arrest after being deposed—had described the UN as the "guardian of democracy" and expressed his confidence in Hammarskjöld. Lumumba later escaped house arrest, starting a chain of events that led to his death.

VILE BETRAYAL
Earlier, Valerian Zorin of Russia had reiterated Moscow's charges that Hammarskjöld and the UN Congo staff were guilty of "vile betrayal" of Lumumba as tools of Belgian and other "colonialists."

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson's speech was a rebuke to the UN Congo commission.

Stays On To Fight Paralysis

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Dag Hammarskjöld charged late Wednesday that the Soviet Union is trying to paralyze the United Nations by attacks on him.

The UN secretary general struck back at Russia at a hectic meeting of the UN Security Council which earlier saw the wildest melee in UN history when a group of Negroes roared into the council chamber protesting the slaying of Patrice Lumumba in the Congo.

REVOLTING CRIME

Hammarskjöld, in his hard-hitting 4,600-word speech, began by describing the slaying of Lumumba, deposed Congolese premier, as a "revolting crime."

Rejecting Soviet demands that he resign or be dismissed, Hammarskjöld declared that Russia is seeking not only to get rid of him but to destroy the post of secretary general and replace it with a "triumvirate which could not function..."

OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES

Hammarskjöld said that in other circumstances he would consider the withdrawal of confidence of one of the security council permanent members—Russia, the U.S., Britain, France and Nationalist China—as a reason to resign.

But "in this case the Soviet Union, while refusing its confidence to the secretary general, has at the same time taken a stand which makes it absolutely clear that, were the present secretary general to resign, no new secretary general could be appointed, and the world would have to bow to the wish of the Soviet Union to have this organization, on its executive side, run by a triumvirate which could not function and which most definitely would not provide the instrument for all the uncommitted countries of which they are in need."

UP TO NEUTRALS

Hammarskjöld said, however, he would resign if it were the wish of the uncommitted nations that he do so in their interest and in that of the UN. He added:

"The decision is thus in the hands of all those for whom the Soviet Union pretends to speak, but for whom I do not believe that it does speak," said Hammarskjöld.

'Most Doctors Know' Canadian Health Bad

Most doctors "know in their hearts that the physical condition of most Canadians is not good," Dr. William C. Gibson told the Canadian Club yesterday, and "what is needed is more space for public recreation."

Doctors, he said, believe that "this is the best kind of preventive psychiatry." (See also Page 29.)

Probe School-Cost Split Now, Says Chatterton

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich would be "heartily in favor" of a royal commission investigation of the distribution of education costs, he said yesterday.

The reeve earlier accused the provincial government of intentionally or otherwise "trying to sneak one in" on municipal property-owners by providing for a new basis of assessment next year—a basis which, he said, will increase greatly the municipalities' share of school costs unless a new cost-sharing formula is introduced.

Especially in view of this situation, he said yesterday, "I think education costs should be thoroughly investigated. Things have changed so much in recent years: the whole system of provincial grants to municipalities, the relations between the province and the municipalities has changed, and the relations between the federal and provincial governments has changed. I would be heartily in favor of a royal commission."
